PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM CUSTOM HOUSE TOWER

UNITED STATES TO FORCE THE ISSUE WITH TEUTONIC POWERS

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The administration, confronted today with complications of the gravest character affecting its relations with the Teutonic allies, was perpared to force a showdown that will settle definitely what the future will bring forth.

The Dumba recall communication, now before the Austrian Foreign Office, was admitted to be the opening of a determined fight against further neutrality violations.

Just how far this will be carried is not yet known. President Wilson intends making it the subject of a conference with Secretary of State Lansng and Attorney-General Gregory within the next few days, when a definite and comprehensive program will be arranged.

The fact that in his letter to the Austrian foreign minister Ambassador Dumba directly involved the German military attache here, Captain Von Papen, by claiming that he indorsed the munition plant strike plan, many officials believe may involve action in the case of the latter, who has already been investigated by government agents on three occasions for illegal activity in behalf of his government. Officials, however, refuse to discuss this, at least until Austria's course in the case of Ambassador Dumba has been outlined.

CONFORMS TO PRECEDENT.

The note asking for the ambassador's recall, while sharp, is said to conform entirely to the precedents, and if Austria wants to accept the view of the United States she easily can do so without loss of dignity. Inasmuch, however, as Dr. Dumba has insisted that his course was dictated from Vienna, many officials feel that Austria may desire to defend his action and insist that he was only "protecting his own nationals." That course would have to be accompanied by the handing to Ambassador Penfield of his passports and a complete break in the present friendly relations between the two governments.

A great many high officials fear that this will be the course pursued, and it is known that this was one of the contingencies carefully canvassed by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing before the demand for recall was cabled. It was agree, however, that the interference with America's internal affairs "by trying to interrupt legitimate trade" was such a flagrant violation of diplomatic

ALLIES TO GET HALF-BILLION U. S. LOAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Within half an hour after the six members of the Anglo-French financial commission to America had left the Red Star liner Lapland today the International News Service was informed that if the commission desired to borrow $500,000,000 for the allies in the United States the loan would be arranged.

The information was authoritative, coming from one of the leading financiers of America. The members of the commission were met at quarantine by J. P. Morgan and his partner, Henry P. Davison. The Americans went to meet the Lapland on the Morgan yacht Corsair, and shortly after 5 o'clock the visiting commissioners left the liner and boarded the yacht, which then sped up the bay.

Morgan and Davison gave a cordial greeting to the commissioners, who are:

Baron Reading, Lord Chief Justice of England, Sir Edward Hopkinson Holden, managing director of the London City and Midland Bank; Sir Henry Babbington Smith, Basil K. Blackett of the British treasury and Octave Homberg and Ernst Mallet of France.

Baron Reading, head of the commission, explained the mission of the bankers as follows:

"The object of the mission is to consult with American bankers and others as to the best means to be adopted for the regulations of exchange between New York, London and Paris, in order that the commerce and industries of these countries may suffer as little as possible during the war."

French Airmen Killed by Their Own Bombs

By International News Service.

GENEVA, Sept. 10.—The explosion of their own bombs killed two French aviators when their machine became entangled in barbed wire as they attempted to alight near Deyingen, in Alsace. The airmen descended because of motor trouble. They were buried by the Germans with military honors.

Zeppelin Driven from Dutch Frontier

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 10.—A despatch to the Maasbode, from Roosendaal, says that Dutch frontier guards fired on a Zeppelin attempting to pass over Holland last night. The German airship was forced to turn back, and proceeded south.

BEOSIDE COURT FOR BANDIT

Hingham Court was today held at the bedside of Chief of Police Washington I. James, when Walter Welsh, the Hingham bandit, who is accused of nearly killing the chief, was brought face to face with his victim. Welsh was held for the Grand Jury under bonds of $6,500.

Propped up in bed, with his head packed in ice and swathed in bandages, the chief identified Welsh and told officially for the first time to Judge George W. Kelley how Welsh and his companion, James Harmon, pounced on him when he brought them their breakfast in the police station; how they beat in his head with a hammer and escaped, and of the chase that followed, during which the chief shot Harmon dead.

After the story court adojurned to the court house, where James Welsh of Lynn, the aged father of the prisoner, made a pathetic plea for mercy for his son. The father broke down and sobbed as he made his appeal. He said it was the old story of evil associates that caused the downfall of his boy.

At this spectacle Welsh, who had remained unmoved since his arrest, gave way to tears and told how he met his associates and how he became implicated in crime.

Early today Welsh was brought under a heavy guard from the Plymouth jail to the Hingham Court House. Judge Kelley opened court as usual, but was told that the chief witness against Welsh, Chief James, could not be brought into court on account of his injuries. After a consultation with Dr. Whelan, the chief's physician, the court announced, as the witness could not come to the court, the court would go to the witness.

The judge said it was necessary to hold the hearing as soon as possible owing to the possibility of the chief dying. He warned those whose presence was necessary at the bedside to be as quiet as possible.

The court and prisoner, still under heavy guard; Clerk of Court H. L. Pratt, Medical Examiner J. H. Peterson, Town Counsel Thomas H. Buttimer, Acting Chief of Police Ira Adams, who captured Williams at the point of his gun, and several others, took automobiles for the chief's home. With them was James Welsh of Lynn, the prisoner's father.

The father remained a silent spectator during the whole proceedings.

Arriving at the house, the party went upstairs to the bed chamber, and Judge Kelley, taking a chair at the head of the bed, opened court in regular form, although in a low voice. Throughout the hearing, the conver-

Germans Drop 30 Bombs on Nancy

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Six German aeroplanes flew over Nancy, dropping thirty bombs, causing material damage at various points and killing two persons and wounding ten, it was announced today. The German aeroplanes also dropped bombs on St. Max, a suburb of Nancy, where several victims are reported. French artillery fired at the German machines and French aviators started in pursuit of them. One of the German machines was damaged by the shell fire.

PURSUED BY CYCLE AT NIGHT

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 10.—A sharp development today in the Mohr murder mystery was the discovery that Dr. C. Franklin Mohr was followed by a mysterious motorcyclist while motoring from this city to his $75,000 villa at Middletown, the Newport suburb, on Thursday evening, August 26.

This was the very date upon which Miss Emily Burger re-entered the physician's employ as temporary housekeeper at the villa.

It was five nights before Dr. Mohr was fatally shot and Miss Burger was seriously wounded while being driven toward the villa, on the evening of August 31.

Mrs. Mohr knew, according to Miss Florence Ormsby, Dr. Mohr's office secretary, that Miss Burger was again in her husband's employ.

Miss Ormsby said yesterday:

"Dr. Mohr told me to tell Mrs. Mohr he had re-engaged Miss Burger. When I told Mrs. Mohr she was furious. She flew in a rage."

MISS BURGER AT VILLA.

Miss Burger went to the villa by train in the daytime of Thursday, August 26. Dr. Mohr was driven in his car that night by George W. Healis, his chauffeur, one of the three colored men now accused in the case with Mrs. Mohr.

It was on the physician's evening run to Middletown that his car was trailed by a mysterious motorcyclist from Bristol Ferry, twelve miles to the villa road.

Dr. Mohr saw the trailing motorcycle and was alarmed. He cut short his stay at Middletown, hastened back to Providence the next day and reported the incident to his personal attorney, Philip S. Cnauer.

Dr. Mohr told Cnauer he had been uneasy since he discharged C. Victor Brown, his hostler, another of the three colored defendants in the case.

Then he told Miss Ormsby he thought the cyclist was Brown.

Dr. Mohr knew Brown had a motorcycle.

MRS. MOHR ANGERED.

The Providence police, struck by the coincidence of the mysterious pursuit with other events just prior to the murder, are now working on a theory that this cyclist was none other than Brown.

Dr. Mohr's housekeeper at his villa was Mrs. Martha Wilson. She wished to go to New Hampshire late in August on a month's vacation to visit relatives.

Dr. Mohr re-engaged Miss Burger, not as office secretary, but as temporary housekeeper at the villa, to take Mrs. Wilson's place.

The doctor, according to Florence Ormsby, went so far as to instruct her to tell Mrs. Mohr of that, although this information would, in the very nature of things, infuriate Mrs. Mohr.

That the doctor knew this is evident by the wording of his instruction to Miss Ormsby. He said to her:

"Tell Mrs. Mohr I have re-engaged Emily and see how she takes it."

Mrs. Mohr, according to Miss Ormsby, took it in very ill part. She was infuriated.

But the doctor carried out his plan respecting Miss Burger. The latter went to Middletown by train on that Thursday before the shooting.

And that very evening came the

Relief From the Heat Promised for Tomorrow

Hot and growing hotter is the weather today.

"Going up" seems to be the motto of the mercury. From 79 at 8 o'clock this morning the thermometer gradually went up and up, until it was 88 at 1 o'clock.

The weather man says it may be even hotter today, but relief is in sight.

He promises cooler weather for tomorrow.

Although today is hotter than yesterday, it is a trifle more comfortable to bear, as our old military friend, General Humidity, was early in the morning put to flight. He was away up yesterday, but today returned to 68, which is about normal.

As usual, Eastport, Me., is the coolest place in New England. While we are sweltering in the eighties, with the nineties in plain sight, the last place in Maine reports nice fall weather, with a temperature of 58 to 65.

The Somerville public schools were closed today on account of the heat. This is the first time in the history of the city the schools have been closed for this reason during September.

Duke Nicholas Lacked Energy, Says Gen. Corsi

ROME, Sept. 9, via Paris, Sept. 10.—"Grand Duke Nicholas lacked sufficient energy to profit from his triumphs when the Russian armies were victorious," writes General Corsi, in the Tribuna.

"He also lacked the influence to impress upon the Emperor that fact that the bureaucracy was responsible for the insufficiency of military preparations.

"During the retreat, however, Grand Duke Nicholas showed a clear mind, capable of formulating precise views and reaching prompt decisions.

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 10.—J. F. Stagg, millionaire vice-president of the Durham & Southern railway, died early today.

400-FOOT DIVE BY SUICIDE IS SEEN BY SCORES

A man dived to his death this afternoon from the topmost observation gallery of the Custom House tower while scores of men and women looked on. It was the most dramatic suicide in Boston's history and the first plunge to death from the new tower.

KILLED AS HE STRIKES LEDGE.

A short time after the man's body had struck the gutter in State street, the body was identified by the police as that of John M. Durick of No. 816 Fifth street, South Boston. It was the opinion of the police that the man died when his body hit the ledge at the sixteenth floor of the structure.

The suicide's leap was from the dizzy height of 418 feet above the street.

According to an eyewitness of the jump, the man carried out his death plan in a most deliberate manner.

For a moment he stood at the railing of the observation gallery, looking north.

VAULTS RAILING.

Then he turned, according to this witness, walked a short distance back, and turned again.

With a spring he ran forward, vaulted over the railing—and in a trice was dead in his fall.

One woman on the gallery, who saw the man's running start for his jump, shrieked and fainted.

Other women in the gallery screamed, and some were near a collapse. At the time there was

PRESIDENT DEMANDS AUSTRIA RECALL AMBASSADOR DUMBA

Crisis in Relations Between United States and the Teutonic Empires.

propriety that only one course of action was permissible. The result was the cabling of the note to Ambassador Penfield.

Officials who believe that Austria will recall the ambassador and disavow his action, thus closing the incident, declare that up to the present time Austria has been unusually friendly to this country and will hardly hazard a break at a time when it must benefit her enemies simply to uphold an ambassador who admitted he had outlived his usefulness in the United States. But all agree that the outcome depends upon just how much truth there was in the Dumba claim that his government, and not himself, was to blame.

Beyond an acknowledgment that the note to Ambassador Penfield has been sent to Vienna, received from Ambassador Gerard in Berlin, the State Department has had no official word from the other side since the message demanding the recall was forwarded.

"WILL RECALL DUMBA."

Unofficial advices today from Vienna, via Amsterdam, however, state that the United States' demand for Dumba's recall has been presented to the Austrian authorities, and that it has caused a sensation in Francis Joseph's capital.

The dispatches state that immediately following presentation of the American note, Baron Burian conferred with Emperor Francis Joseph, but that the result of the conference was not made public. "It can be stated, however," said this message, "that Austria will recall Dr. Dumba. It is probable that no successor will be appointed at present, but that the affairs of the embassy will be conducted by one of the attaches."

President Wilson had before him today the German Arabic note. There was decided disappointment in official circles over the tone of the document, even though it expressed regret that lives were lost. The flat declaration that the German government "is unable, however, to acknowledge any obligation to grant indemnity in the matter, even though the commander should have been mistaken as to the aggressive intention of the Arabic," has displeased greatly officials close to the President.

"PREJUDGING THE CASE."

They declare that it is an open prejudging of the case which the suggestion of arbitration, if the two governments cannot reach a harmonious agreement on this point, does not soften. Many officials were inclined to believe that the President would make this plain to Germany in a peremptory note, but not a word as to their intentions could be obtained either from the President or Secretary Lansing.

There was no attempt, however, to disguise the disappointment over the general tone of the memorandum, which is characterized in official circles as more a general defence of submarine warfare than an effort to meet the known wishes of the administration.

The President and Secretary Lansing planned to confer on the Arabic note either this afternoon or tomorrow to decide on a course of action. Whether Ambassador von Bernstorff will be requested to come to Washington is understood not to have been decided as yet.

VON BERNSTORFF AND DR. DUMBA MEET FOR SECRET CONFERENCE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Count Johann von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and Dr. Constantin Theodore Dumba, ambassador from Austria-Hungary, whose recall has been demanded by the United States, held a secret conference at the Hotel St. Regis this afternoon.

During the morning the Austrian envoy remained hidden in his quarters at the hotel, refusing to see any visitors, but shortly after 12:30 o'clock Count von Bernstorff slipped into the hotel through an underground passage connecting the hostelry with a private house adjoining.

The German ambassador hurried to Dr. Dumba's quarters. Newspaper men attempted to follow, but were brushed aside by two detectives who kept close watch while the conference was in progress.

The German ambassador called at the St. Regis in response to a summons from Dr. Dumba after the latter had received an important dispatch from Vienna.

It was reported that this had to do with the American note demanding the envoy's recall, one rumor being that Dr. Dumba had been instructed to leave the United States and had sought a conference with Count von Bernstorff to arrange personal and other affairs.

Count von Hohenlohe, an attache of the Austrian embassy, was the man who carried the Dumba summons to Von Bernstorff.

Within a few minutes after he reached the Ritz-Carlton, where Von Bernstorff stops, the latter jumped into a taxi-cab and were whirled away to the St. Regis.

Taxicabs carrying newspaper men hurried in pursuit, reaching the St. Regis at the same time as the Teuton diplomats. The latter avoided the main entrance and hurried through the private house next door. None was allowed to follow them.

Touraine Protests Contractors' Noise

The T. R. Whipple Company, owners of Hotel Touraine, today sought an injunction against the Swift-Mercott Company, building wreckers, and L. P. Soule & Sons Company, contractors, to restrain them from demolishing Hotel Pelham between the hours of 6 p. m. and 8 a. m. The complaint sets forth that guests of the Touraine are not able to sleep on account of the noise.

Probe Attempt to Burn Building

Acting Chief George C. Neal of the State police will conduct an inquest on Monday to place responsibility for an attempt to burn the five-story brick tenement building at No. 34 Anderson street on Monday night. A lighted candle and rags saturated with turpentine were found.

TEXT OF THE U. S. NOTE DEMANDING DUMBA'S RECALL

The text of the American note demanding the recall of Dr. Dumba, the Austrian ambassador, follows:

Dr. Constantin Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Washington, has admitted that he proposed to his government plans to instigate strikes in American manufacturing plants engaged in the production of munitions of war. The information reached this government through a copy of a letter of the ambassador to his government. The bearer was an American citizen named Archibald, who was traveling under an American passport. The ambassador admitted that he employed Archibald to bear official dispatches from him to his government.

By reason of the admitted purpose and intent of Dr. Dumba to conspire to cripple legitimate industries of the people of the United States and to interrupt their legitimate trade, and by reason of the flagrant violation of diplomatic propriety in employing an American citizen, protected by an American passport, as a secret bearer of official dispatches through the lines of the enemy of Austro-Hungary, the President directs me to inform Your Excellency that Dr. Dumba is no longer acceptable to the government of the United States as the ambassador of His Imperial Majesty at Washington.

Believing that the imperial and royal government will realize that the government of the United States has no alternative but to request the recall of Dr. Dumba on account of his improper conduct, the government of the United States expresses its deep regret that this course has become necessary and assures the imperial and royal government that it sincerely desires to continue the cordial and friendly relations which exist between the United States and Austria-Hungary.

U. S. PREPARING SHARP REPLY ON ARABIC

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The State Department has begun preparation of a reply to the German note on the Arabic, emphatically rejecting the suggestion that the submarine commander was entirely within his right in torpedoing the liner, and also the contention that Germany is not under obligation to grant indemnity in the matter.

This note will be presented to President Wilson for his approval as soon as completed. It was intimated in official circles that there is no intention of consulting further with Ambassador von Bernstorff on the subject.

The note, when approved, will be handed to the German Foreign Office by Ambassador Gerard, to whom it will be cabled.

President Wilson, it is understood, takes the position that the Arabic note and the German submarine commander's claims are entirely at variance with the physical facts in the matter, the Arabic having been torpedoed far to the westward instead of in a bow section, which would have been the case had she been trying to ram the submarine.

Officials today became more amused at the general tone of the note the more they examined it. Not only was it far from conciliatory, they said, but it apparently was written to end the matter according to the German point of view.

"It was thought possible that the note was drafted in such a manner so as to purposely delay action and to draw on a controversy. This, it was made plain by officials today, positively would not be permitted. The answer now being drafted by the State Department, it was said, would be sharp and to the point, and would reject in toto all of Germany's suggestions.

ARABIC BUGLER SAYS SUBMARINE ATTACK WAS DELIBERATE

By International News Service.

NEW YORK Sept. 10.—That the German U-boat deliberately attacked the White Star liner Arabic and that the report of the submarine's commander is wholly false was the declaration of Charles Holdford, bugler of the lost liner, who arrived here today in a similar position on the Red Star steamship Lapland.

Holdford said the submarine was on the opposite side of the injured freighter Dunsley when the Arabic put about to go to the assistance of the vessel and that the U-boat deliberately dived and went to attack the Arabic, then almost half a mile away.

"I did not see the submarine at that time," Holdford said, "but members of the Dunsley's crew saw it put out deliberately to attack the Arabic.

"I was among the first, though, to see the white wake of the on-rushing torpedo, and I put up my bugle and blew the master call summoning the crew to the lifeboats just as the torpedo struck us.

"The story that we tried to ram the submarine is absurd. Nobody aboard the Arabic saw the undersea boat before the attack and it submerged and disappeared immediately after firing the torpedo."

BERLIN REPORTS TRENCHES IN WEST TAKEN

By International News Service.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—Storming French positions in the Vosges, the Germans yesterday captured enemy trenches, the General Staff reported today. Two officers, 109 men and six machine guns were taken in the conflict.

The official report also tells of German successes in the Eastern theatre of war. Field Marshal von Hindenburg's troops took by storm the Kieski heights, capturing 1,500 prisoners and seven machine guns.

The Russians in the vicinity of Tucynow have been driven back toward that place.

The General Staffs' report follows:

"Western theatre: West of Souches an advanced French trench was taken and strengthened by us. The occupants, with the exception of a few prisoners, fell at the point of the bayonet.

"In the Vosges tranches situated counter attack on Schratzmaennele and Hartmannswellerkopf were taken by storm. We captured two officers, 109 men and six machine guns.

"The counter attack on Schratzmaennele was repulsed with sanguinary loss to the enemy.

"Eastern theatre—Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: In the fighting southeast of Friedrichstadt, near Wilkomir, our division took several hundred prisoners. The situation between the Baltic and the Niemen is generally unchanged. Near Skidel, on the Nelwienka sector, fighting is proceeding. We took by storm the heights near Kleski, on the Nelwienka.

"Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: Our pursuing columns are getting near the railway station of Kossowo on the road from Kobrin to Malowidy. On both sides of the railway to Pinsk we reached the line of Tulatycze-Owcice.

"Southeastern theatre: The Germans drove the Russians back in the direction of Tucynow. On the Sereth, south of Tarnopol and southwest of Tucynow, near Tarnopol, stubborn enemy attacks were repulsed."

Carranza to Offer Counter Proposal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—General Carranza will make a counter proposal to the invitation of the United States and six Latin-American countries to participate in a peace conference, it became known here today. He will add that there is no reason why his government should not send representatives to a conference participated in by the United States and other foreign countries to discuss "any and all international problems affecting Mexico."

PARKMAN WILLS MAY CAUSE CONTEST

As a result of a second will of Mrs. Grace Parkman of No. 108 Train street, Dorchester, being filed there will probably be a contest to find out who are the legal heirs.

The second will, dated June 19, 1915, differs materially from the first will, which was dated August 24, 1914.

In the second will filed Mrs. Parkman left $2,000 to Boston College to found a scholarship to be known as the Grace Parkman scholarship with the stipulation that Charles Black Parkman, virtually an adopted son, shall be given the preference if he wishes to take advantage of the scholarship.

It is further provided that when Charles Black Parkman shall reach the age of twenty-four, "if he proves worthy," he shall receive $2,000. The trustees of the estate are to decide.

The will bequeaths $3,000 to Boston College at University Heights, Newton for altars or other furnishings for the chapel.

A bequest of $2,000 goes to the Animal Rescue League. The following organizations receive $500 each: The Home for Crippled Children, Boston; Home for Destitute Catholic Children, Harrison avenue, Boston; Free Home for Consumptives, Quincy street, Dorchester; Daley Industrial School, Train street, Dorchester; Catholic Working Boys' Home, Newton; Holy Ghost Hospital, Cambridge; St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, Perkins Institution for the Blind.

There is a gift of $300 to St. Ann's Church, Neponset, for a memorial window for Grace and Joseph W. Parkman (her husband).

The Rev. John S. McKone, pastor of St. Ann's Church, Neponset, and Emma J. Finnegan of Dorchester are made executors and trustees under the will, and all previous wills are revoked.

Subway Station at South Terminal Nearly Finished

"South Station Under," which is the next station to be completed in the Dorchester Tunnel, is almost ready for the "finishing touches."

The contract for straightening and smoothing the rough places on the walls and tiling them has been awarded by the Transit Commission to Keith & Craffey of Boston on an estimated cost of $2,736.

It will be three or four weeks before the station is ready for this work to begin, and the tiling will take about two months. There are two levels in this station.

The work on the inclined elevator shafts and all the work on or above the lobby level is to be completed within thirty days after the contractor is enabled to start, and the work below the level of the lobby is to be completed within thirty days after the contractor is notified that the walls are ready for him.

1,800 New England Pastors Patronize Theological Library

"New England ministers must keep up their reading and be in touch with the thought of the times," points out Miss Pillsbury, librarian of the General Theological Library No. 55 Mt. Vernon street.

"This library offers to send to any minister in New England free, two books a month, with postage paid both ways. There are now over eighteen hundred ministers thus using books chosen from our lists."

NIELSEN AT ODDS WITH MISS FARRAR ON MOTHERHOOD

Miss Alice Nielsen, takes issue with Geraldine Farrar's statement that art and domesticity do not agree. "On the contrary," says Miss Nielsen, "I don't believe a woman can be a true artist until she has experienced the joys of motherhood. I would not give up my Ben for all the careers in the world. I believe every woman ought to marry and have children."

Mme. Bernhardt Rehearses in a Film Scene

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Sarah Bernhardt, who is taking part in a new movie play, "Jean Dore," as her first theatrical work since her leg was amputated, rehearsed the guillotine scene, which was enacted in the open on the fortifications of Paris.

Mme. Bernhardt was unable to walk unsupported.

"I am not yet accustomed to my new artificial limb," she said. "It feels a little short for me, but otherwise my health is better than at any time since my operation."

Roads Earn Less Despite Rate Raise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Despite the rate increases in the 5 per cent. case, the Eastern railroads earned less per mile in the year ending June 30 last than in the previous year, the Interstate Commerce Commission today announced. Their earnings per mile in 1915 were $21,790, against $22,915 for 1914. They had a larger net earning per mile, however, as a result of reduction in expenses.

Local Authorities Must Guard Ships

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—British, French and Russian ships sailing from New York, Boston and other Atlantic ports for the war zone must depend upon local and not federal authorities for protection from bomb outrages. Officials frankly say that placing of bombs in cargo ships and conspiracies to fire or wreck them are not punishable under the federal code.

GUARDS NEAR DEATH AFTER RESCUE

SALISBURY BEACH, Sept. 10.—A bather and two volunteer life savers that went to his aid here were carried out to deep water by a heavy surf, and were unconscious when rescuers brought them to shore by means of life belts and long lines.

Albert True, one of the life savers, is at the beach police station in a serious condition. The other life saver, Daniel J. Pierce, is being cared for at a cottage near the beach. Max Slavie, whom they tried to reacue, was able to return to his home on Emerson street, Haverhill.

Slavie stood in water almost to his shoulders when an undertow caught him and carried him down. Those who saw him disappear went out to help him, but the tide and surf had carried him to deep water. Lifesavers saw him appear some distance from shore, and True and Pierce took lifebelts with lines attached and started toward him.

Slavie was unconscious when the life-savers reached him. Each seized him by an arm and sailed for those holding the lines on the beach to draw them to shore. At the first pull on the lines the unconscious man slipped from the lifesavers' grasp. In their efforts to prevent Slavie from sinking, True and Pierce forgot to signal to those ashore to stop pulling on the lines. They were forced to let go the lifebelts and stay with Slavie.

The surf pounded them as they struggled to reach the bather, and they were compelled to bear his weight and keep themselves afloat while bathers on the shore approached with other life belts.

Filene's

For Young Folks' Week, all the

Misses' and Girls' Shops

have provided exceptional merchandise, both as to value and style (judged even by Filene standards) for girls going away to college, for "flappers," for high and grammar school lassies.

BUT, please do not stop with reading. The shop windows on the fourth floor, the shops themselves, are radiating so much brightness and newness that only a visit can tell half the story. (The younger girls will enjoy the Doll Show on the Third Floor).

MISSES' SUIT SHOP

Misses' Suits Sketched Are Remarkable

—Practically Filene-made. They represent six out of a hundred styles almost equally good

1. Lanvin copy; broadcloth trimmed with beaver, features are box coat and flat buttons, $25.

2. Beaver trimmed, braid trimmed gabardine suit, $29.50.

3. Good model for the petite girl. Broadcloth, new convertible collar, $25.

4. Excellent type of tailor-made coat, beautifully made. "Lanvin's Oxford Gray" and other mixtures, $25.

5. Suede - cloth tailored suit, beaver collar, $35.

6. An actual improvement on a model costing twice as much. Chiffon broadcloth with Chin Chin collar of beaver, $25.

BOYS' SUIT SHOP

Boys' Corduroy Suits for School and Roughing

$5 Two Pairs of Trousers

NOTE—Corduroy alone means extra wear—two pairs of trousers is almost equivalent to unlimited wear.

These corduroy suits (corduroy is mostly cotton, but will wear very well) in spite of their low price have three patch pockets, stitched down belts and lining and taping in BOTH PAIRS OF TROUSERS.

Another score for the Filene boys' shop whose wool suits at $5, $6.50, $7.50 and more are sending so many boys schoolward with one pair of trousers while another at home acts as insurance against back-fence ripping and school-yard accidents.

Sizes are from 7 to 18 years, $5.

Boys' blue serge Norfolk suits, first color. $5, $6.50, $7.50 and More.

Boys' novelty suits in serge, velvet, worsted, $5 to $10

NOTE—The children's barber shop is growing quickly and in the interests of better service we request kiddies to come EARLY Saturday or on some other day if possible. Second Floor.

MAN LEAPS TO DEATH FROM CUSTOM HOUSE TOWER IN DRAMATIC SUICIDE

Witnesses Describe Awful Plunge from Balcony to Street, 418 Feet.

quite a number of sightseers in the gallery—on the four sides, north, east, south and west. The man jumped from the north side, and persons who happened to be there saw his act.

SEE BODY STRIKE.

Whether he had planned his end before mounting to the gallery up the 418 feet of elevator travel, or had simply been overcome by dizziness until he lost his reason, the spectators said they did not know.

Persons on the other side of the gallery, hearing the screams of the women, rushed to the north side.

A number leaned over the railing in time to see the body strike the street, they said.

According to the accounts of some of them, the body struck twice in the fall—once at the ledge at the sixteenth floor and the second time on the top of the old Custom House building out of which the new tower points its way upward.

From the top of the old structure the body bounced to the street.

When it struck the street the head was gone—gone as completely as if it had been cut clean.

The tragedy was observed by many passing in State street. Soon a great throng gathered.

The suicide leap took place despite the constant vigilance of a government guard kept on the observation gallery to prevent just such occurrences. The guard must watch all four sides, and happened to be in another part when the man leaped from the north gallery. The guard was absolved from all blame by spectators, who said he was on the lookout, but could not keep an eye on all four sides at the same moment. While his back was turned, the man leaped to his death.

SAW MAN JUMP.

One of the eyewitnesses of the suicide was James Murphy of No. 13 Rutland square, South End. This is his story:

"I saw the suicide on the observation gallery on the State street side. I saw him take a look over the railing. I myself had been admiring the great view one gets of Boston from the gallery.

"Then I noticed this man turn, walk away, then turn, facing the railing. He took a short run as with a spring, and then jumped clear of the railing into the air.

"There were a number of men and women up there at the time. One woman collapsed. All screamed.

"I looked over and saw the body in its fall to the street. It was enough to sicken one."

Dennis Noonan and C. J. King, letter carriers, who were on another side of the gallery, said they heard the noise and turned in time to see the suicide's body swirl over the topmost ledge.

The police said the guard on duty at the time was James Deering, but absolved him from any blame, explaining that he was keeping a close watch at the time, but was unable to guard all sides at the same moment.

Thomas F. Breen, employed on State street, was in a restaurant at dinner at the time of the plunge to death. He was attracted by the crunch of the body as it landed in the street, directly in front of the entrance on the State street side. He was one of the first on the scene. The police were notified and in a few minutes Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner, had arrived.

The police, after talking with Murphy, another witness, said the man was undoubtedly a suicide.

FIRST TOWER TRAGEDY.

The tower's first tragedy occurred about 12:45 o'clock, when the street below was thronged with the noon-hour crowds, in a short time State street and nearby thoroughfares were jammed with the throng.

William H. Attwell, clerk in the surveyor's department at the Custom House, was just entering the basement of the Custom House by the north door when the body came hurtling through the air and landed within five feet of him. Mr. Attwell said:

"I was just about to enter the doorway when I saw something coming through the air and land with a report like the back-fire of an automobile within five feet of where I stood. It was the body.

"Although parts of the body were scattered for many feet around, strange to say, I was not hit by any of them.

"When I realized it was the body of a human being it made me ill. I was so overcome that I could hardly think. When I recovered a little I saw what was left of the body scattered all around the pavement."

BOUNDED INTO STREET.

John Dacey, a customs employe, said:

"I was inside the basement with Mr. McCarthy, assistant custodian, when I heard an explosion that resembled the backfire of an automobile.

"Hurrying to the street, I saw the body of a man. A wagon was passing, and I borrowed a blanket, with which I covered the body.

"The man must have struck the roof in falling from the tower and then bounded into State street.

The top balcony, visited daily by hundreds of sightseers, is 418 feet from the ground. The height of the uptop of the tower is 495 feet. The big clock is 350 feet from the ground. The uppermost balcony is known as the observation gallery, and here constant watch is maintained by a guard employed by the government. He is known as the man whose duty it is to "keep people from killing themselves." It is estimated that at least 1,700 persons visit this gallery daily, chiefly to get the great panoramic view of Greater Boston—a birdseye view that is unexcelled from any altitudinous point in New England.

It has been reported that several persons on reaching the dizzy height have been overcome by a desire to jump, a psychological feeling that finds expression in the common saying, "dizzy heights." One woman who lost control of herself in the gallery some time ago explained that she felt "top-heavy" and felt as if she must fall.

A Foe to Tuberculosis

The Journal of the American Medical Association (August 8, 1914), reviewing an article on "The Influence of Calcium Salts on Constitution and Health," said: "They (the authors) report numbers of concrete instances in which patients gained in vitality and energy after taking calcium."

Doctors agree that in tuberculosis lowered vitality and lost energy must be overcome. One of the constituents of Eckman's Alterative is calcium (lime), in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. To this in part, is due its success in the treatment of tuberculosis—a service which even medical practitioners have acknowledged in many patients. We make no wholesale claims for it, but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, a trial is safe. Sold in all Rexall Drug Stores and leading druggists.

SUES BECAUSE HUSBAND BUYS LIQUOR

Mrs. Nora A. Madden of Charlestown has entered suit in the Superior Court for $5,000 damages against John C. Ming and Mary H. O'Malley, who, she alleges, are co-partners in the liquor business in Charlestown at No. 536 Medford street, and have sold liquor to her husband in spite of her requests that they should not.

According to Mrs. Madden she has "suffered great physical pain, mental distress, pain, anxiety, mortification, shame and disgrace, and loss of support from her husband" as a result.

Copies of letters written by Mrs. Madden to Mr. King are appended to the bill.

To Honor Daniel Boone.

MONTGOMERY CITY, Mo., Sept. 10.—After nearly 100 years a monument is to be erected over the burial place of Daniel Boone, near Marthasville, Warren County, through the efforts of the Daughters of the American Revolution. It is to be made of a large red granite boulder found in Warren County, which Boone selected as his last resting place. It is planned to dedicate the marker October 23 at the close of a conference of the Missouri Daughters, which is to be held in St. Louis.

THE RENTING PROBLEM

Is easily solved with the aid of the Boston American's Renting Register and Illustrated Addendum, which is FREE at 30 Summer street and 264 Washington street.

MURDER VICTIM, HER MAID AND MAN WHO CONFESSED

Miss Edith Langfeldt, who was bound and gagged by the thieves.

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Nichols, the millionaire widow who was slain by the robber band when the latter sought to rob her of $500,000 in gems.

Onnie Talas, the Nichols footman, who confessed that he admitted the burglars.

MRS. NICHOLS DIED FROM ATTACK

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The death of Mrs. Elizabeth Griggs Nichols, who died in an attempt to prevent burglars from looting her home, was due to attack, according to the report of an autopsy performed by Dr. Otto H. Schultz, assistant State medical examiner.

The autopsy disclosed that the woman had been afflicted with chronic disease and enlargement of the heart. These afflictions, coupled with the shock which she suffered when attacked by the intruders, might have killed her, but except for the shock she might have lived.

Onnie Talas, footman in her home, has confessed that he and a band of youthful gangsters planned the robbery of the wealthy woman's home. He has furnished the police with the names of the men who attacked the wealthy widow.

The police stated that Talas confessed that his accomplices planned to overpower Mrs. Nichols in order to obtain the strong box in which they supposed she kept $500,000 in jewels. But it is believed the only booty taken was jewelry which she was wearing at the time of the struggle.

WATCH TERMINALS

Every railway terminal, steamship and ferry in the metropolitan district today was being watched for three men named by Talas, the Finn footman, as the murderers.

Five youths, besides Talas, were in custody, but they were held only as witnesses, the police believing they knew of the whereabouts and habits of the gangsters named by the Nichols servant. At least one of the trio, all of whom are known to the police by name and address, had been in the employ of the slain woman. He is Arthur Walters, or Waldemar, who was recognized on the night of the murder by Edith Langfeldt, the maid, and Ileona Toivonen, the Nichols cook.

The meshes of the police dragnet today were complete and Inspector Faurot before nightfall hoped to have in custody all of the principals in the most sensational murder and robbery in the history of Fifth avenue.

The confession of Talas as given out by Inspector Faurot, besides clearing up the murder of Mrs. Nichols, caused the police to believe that the tragedy was only an integral part of a plot for the wholesale robbery of the Fifth avenue rich.

All of the men named by Talas are said to have been in the employ of wealthy households, and the attempt to get possession of Mrs. Nichols' fortune in gems was under discussion by the youthful band for weeks before the attempt was made.

MEANT NO HARM.

Talas in all his talks with Inspector Faurot has been firm in his declarations that the robbers meant no harm to Mrs. Nichols, and the police now believe from the opinions of physicians that the woman may have died of fright or shock, rather than from violence. Other than the twisted dolly knotted about her neck there were no marks on the throat and no evidence of strangulation.

Mrs. Nichols' inordinate love of gems and her reputed custom of keeping $500,000 worth of jewelry in the house is held by the police to be responsible for the tragedy. It was commonly believed by the servants that the widow kept her jewels in a strong box in the East Seventy-ninth street house, and according to the alleged confession of Talas, the robbery was planned by Walters, at one time a second butler in the employ of Mrs. Nichols.

New Jersey Men to Fight Suffrage

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 10.—The Men's Anti-Suffrage League of New Jersey, just organized, says the amendment to the constitution granting woman suffrage, which will go before New Jersey voters on October 19, should be overwhelmingly defeated. It calls on the men of the State to consider clearly what it says is the most important economic and social issue that has come before the voters of the State for the last fifty years. Following are some of the questions the new league asks and the points it makes:

"Will woman suffrage tend to make homes more happy, comfortable attractive and peaceful, or in any way more perfect? Will it tend to strengthen the bond between wife and husband? Will it help mothers to take better care of their children? Will it make children happier or better?

"In our opinion, woman suffrage is calculated to bring about just the opposite results. And inasmuch as the hope of the future lies in the child and the hope of the child lies in the home, anything which permanently injures the home cannot be for the common good."

School Children Can't Afford Handicaps

In a remarkable test, recently made under the supervision of the State Board of Health of Minnesota, over 9000 school children were questioned as to what they ate for breakfast.

A large percentage of the breakfasts consisted of coffee, bread and butter; coffee and oatmeal or some other cereal; coffee and hotcakes; coffee and biscuits; coffee and coffee cake, or coffee alone. Probably the same conditions prevail everywhere throughout the country.

"IS IT ANY WONDER," SAYS THE EXAMINING PHYSICIAN, "THAT 23 PER CENT OF THESE CHILDREN HAVE FREQUENT HEADACHES?"

He was thinking of the chief cause—coffee. And it IS no wonder when we consider that coffee contains the powerful drug, caffeine, a nerve poison and notorious cause of headaches, heart trouble, sleeplessness, irritation, and other ills!

Parents often wonder why their children are sickly, dull and backward in school, when frequently the cause lies in the homely, accepted habit of giving them a beverage containing an insidious poison.

When scientists and Boards of Health everywhere are speaking out against the dietetic dangers to which children have been so long subjected, it is high time that parents take heed and correct these conditions. No child should be permitted to use coffee. It is easy to furnish them instead the pleasant, pure food-drink—

PARIS ADMITS GERMAN GAIN IN VOSGES

By International News Service.

PARIS, Sept. 10.—Today's communique from the French War Office states the Germans, using shells containing asphyxiating gas and throwing burning liquid, were able to gain ground in the Vosges yesterday. The French made a counter attack after losing part of their positions at Schratzmaennele and recaptured most of the positions which the Germans had gained.

The fighting of last night in the Argonne was confined to conflicts with bombs and grenades. This indicates that the Crown Prince's new attempt to drive through the French lines with his infantry has been abandoned for the present.

The text of the communique follows:

"Last night saw an artillery battle around Arras, before Roye and on the Champagne front.

"In the Argonne, in the sector of LaNaraxee, there were combats with grenades and bombs as well as rifle firing, without interruption. Our batteries were effective in various engagements.

"In the Vosges, the enemy yesterday attacked our positions from Linge-kopf to Barrenkopf, using asphyxiating shells. At Schratzmaennele one of the trenches of our first line to be evacuated following the throwing of burning liquid.

"One of our counter attacks enabled us to regain the greater part of the lost ground and to maintain our positions ten yards from that portion of the trench which had not been recaptured.

"On the rest of this front our positions were fully maintained.

"Late yesterday the Germans launched against our trenches on the summit of Hartmannsweiler Kopf an attack which enabled them to gain a foothold. During the night we made a counter-attack, retaking the lost trenches and rolling the enemy back to his own lines.

"Our aviators this morning bombarded the mines and the batteries in the forest of Nonnenbruck; likewise the station of Lutterbach. Thirty shells were thrown on the railway station at Grand Pre."

Charge Misuse of U. S. Flag by Allies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Several allegations of misuse of the American flag by British and allied merchant vessels while passing through the war zone are under investigation by the State Department. These violations are said to be entirely similar to others which already have resulted in the sending of protests to the British Foreign Office.

Prince Humbert of Italy at the Front

By International News Service.

ROME, Sept. 10.—Crown Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, arrived at army headquarters today and was given an enthusiastic reception. The young prince will be eleven years old on Wednesday and the permission to visit the front was in the nature of a birthday present from the King.

ANNIHILATION OF VILLA'S ARMY NEAR

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Villa is very hard pressed in northern Mexico and a large part of his army is facing annihilation, according to a series of dispatches to the State Department from its consular representatives in Mexico.

He is evacuating Torreon while a strong force of Carrancista soldiers has attacked his outposts at Pedro Las Colonias, to the east of that city.

Villista officials here declare that Villa personally is in command of his troops and is evacuating Torreon to take up a more strategic position previously prepared.

Carrancista representatives, however, declare that their advices show that Villa has lost most of his munitions and artillery and will not be able to make a determined stand at any point.

Meanwhile the new complications with Austria and Germany are expected to interfere with an immediate meeting of the Latin-American conferees with Secretary Lansing. It will also give Carranza what he most desires, time to demonstrate that he actually is in control of the most of Mexico and therefore should receive recognition.

His reply rejecting the invitation to participate in a peace conference is expected to reach Secretary Lansing very soon.

Pope's Mail Held Up, Germans Claim

VIENNA REPORTS REPULSE OF ITALIANS

By International News Service.

VIENNA, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Sept. 10.—Repulse of Italian attacks at three different points on the front are reported in an official statement issued at the Austrian War Office today. The statement follows:

"In the Schluberbach region on the Italian front our troops repulsed enemy divisions, attacking the Popenah positions.

"Our artillery repulsed two Italian companies, attacking a point of support in the Peralba district.

"Enemy patrols ascending Monte Cindenis were driven back."

ZEPPELINS FAIL IN ATTACK ON RIGA

PETROGRAD, Sept. 10.—A German aerial squadron, consisting of six Zeppelins and several aeroplanes, attacked Riga Wednesday night, the Admiralty announced today, but was driven off before it inflicted any serious damage.

One of the Zeppelins is believed to have been badly damaged, as it was able to fly only slowly when the squadron withdrew.

Two aeroplanes dropped bombs upon Vilna Wednesday afternoon, wounding several civilians.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DEAF

If you are losing your hearing—if you are troubled with buzzing and ringing in the ears—if you find that your nostrils are clogged—if you hawk and spit in the morning—if you have given up hopes of finding relief, just go to Rikel-Jaynes, or any other drug store, and purchase one ounce of Fluid Enserol. Mix this with one pint of warm water. Put two drops in the affected ear every night. Put one tablespoonful in a fourth of a glass of warm water and gargle throat and snuff up nose night and morning. Keep this up for a few weeks and test your hearing and you will be pleased to note the improvement. You will also, no doubt, discover that your catarrh has disappeared and head noises gone.

HINGHAM BANDIT ARRAIGNED AT BEDSIDE OF CHIEF JAMES

sation was conducted almost in whispers.

Welsh appeared unmoved. He was charged with assault with attempt to kill, breaking and entering and with the larceny of an automobile. Even when the chief was telling in whispers the most brutal part of the assault, Welsh never for an instant lost his self-possession. He was represented by counsel.

At the conclusion of the hearing the judge formally closed court and the party silently took its departure. Afterward the doctor said the chief was somewhat weakened by his efforts, but that he apprehended no serious results.

When Williams was first arrested it was supposed he belonged in Lawrence. Later he was identified as James Welsh, a member of a highly respectable Lynn family. His father and mother both visited Chief James during the week to plead for mercy for their son. Together with their daughter, they also visited him in the Plymouth Jail.

Chief James told his own story of the affair and it was the same story as told exclusively to the Sunday AMERICAN.

At the courthouse Town Counsel Thomas H. Buttimer asked for heavy bail for Welsh. James Welsh, his father, asked permission to address the court on this request. He said:

"This boy is a good boy and always has been a good boy. I never had to even snap my fingers at him. He has never been in trouble before. He wouldn't be in trouble now if he hadn't lost his job because work was slack. He fell in with evil companions. He was led away by his associates. Harmon was with him down to Lynn the Sunday before the crime. I recognize him now from his pictures. I didn't like the looks of him.

"I said to Walter: 'He doesn't look like a good man. You'd better be careful.' He said: 'Oh, he's all right,' but I was not convinced.

Mr. Welsh's voice trembled and he was forced to stop. Recovering himself he continued:

"That very day his mother had a premonition that something bad was going to happen to Walter. She said to him, 'I have a feeling that you are going to do something to get your picture in the papers. Don't, my boy, do anything that will bring grief to your mother who loves you.' Judge, I have just lost one boy and I suppose in a way I am now going to lose another one, but I ask you to make the bail as low as possible. I am a poor man, but I will do my best to raise it. I would do anything for my boy."

Welsh was overcome at the display of grief by his father. He signified his willingness to tell the police how he came to be acquainted with the bandits. He said:

"I met Harmon and a man named Pat in a pool room in Boston. I had been working in Cambridge as a metal worker for J. R. Flynn & Co., but work was slack and I was laid off. I never saw Pat before and haven't seen him since that night of the burglary.

"I do not know Pat's other name, as I never heard it. Harmon just called him Pat. On this day we went to Nantasket in an automobile furnished by Pat. We came back through Hingham. When near Huntley's garage they stopped and said they were going in to get some oil.

"I was sitting in the car in the dark when Harmon came out of the building and yelled, 'Start the car quick! I couldn't, because I didn't know how. Harmon started the car and we went off at full speed. We were later stopped in Quincy and arrested. I do not know what became of Pat."

The police are looking for "Pat." The car referred to was stolen from Woodland Park.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CATARRH

A Germ Disease That Can Be Stopped by Killing Germs Which Cause It.

A good many claims are made for this and that remedy for Catarrh and doubtless you have yourself tried many of them and received no permanent benefit.

The fact remains, however, that there is a way to get rid of catarrh forever and certainly the method most likely to succeed and to cure where all else has failed is one that your own druggist has so much faith in that he will sell it to you on a positive guarantee of success or money back.

I refer to exactly the way that Rikerhead Catarrh Cure and many other leading druggists in this country are advising. Hyomei, the great catarrh germ killer, a wonderful medicated but pleasant smelling air which you breathe into your nose, throat and lungs through a small inhaling device that dragoons further with it, a Hyomei is made from the pure healing oil of Eucalyptus, combined with other powerful germicidal ingredients and it not only clears up the head and air passages and heals the sore, swollen, inflamed membranes of your nose and throat, but it goes further and does more. Its penetrating air is absolute and positive death to every catarrh germ in your system. It destroys them utterly. And when the germs go the disease and all its disagreeable symptoms stop. If you have Catarrh breathe Hyomei. It's the only sensible thing to do and you gain nothing and lose much by delay. Don't wait for damp season sets in. Cure that case of Catarrh now while you have the weather in your favor. Don't trust to memory. Cut this out of the paper now and take it in to your druggist the very next time you pass his store. Insist on getting the complete outfit which includes the pocket inhaler as it is very necessary to use this inhaler to get best results.—Advertisement.

Girl of 15 Years Drinks Poison in a Hallway

Frances Buonotempo, a 15-year-old East Boston girl, was taken to the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital today, suffering from the effects of a disinfectant which the police declared she had drunk from a bottle while standing in the hallway of No. 3 Prince street, North End. The police were unable to explain the girl's act.

The girl was first treated for poisoning by Dr. Gerardo M. Balboni, who has an office in the Prince street building. According to the police, Dr. Balboni noticed the girl with a bottle at her mouth, just as she was entering the building. The physician snatched the bottle from her, and administered an emetic. She had swallowed about a teaspoonful of the disinfectant.

People in the neighborhood said they had observed the girl walking up and down Prince street, apparently in a nervous state. Her home is on Porter street, East Boston.

Though the girl's name was placed on the dangerous list, hospital physicians said they expected recovery.

Millions of Eggs in Storage, and Price High

With the price of eggs steadily advancing, the monthly bulletin of the State Department of Health today discloses that 22,104,310 dozens of eggs were held in cold storage in this State on July 1. At the same time more than 12,000,000 pounds of butter were held in cold storage.

The report shows that nearly 21,000,000 dozens of eggs were placed in the storages during April, May and June, evidently to be held for the cooler and Winter months.

The same report shows that in July the State Department of Health condemned 18,660 pounds of meats, fowl, butter and fish that were confined in cold storage. The composition of the articles caused the State Department to declare them unfit.

In the same month about 23,000 pounds of fish in pickle were confiscated.

CUSHING SAYS AMENDMENT TO CONSTITUTION IS NECESSARY

Lieutenant-Governor Grafton D. Cushing, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, wrote to the AMERICAN today in support of his campaign contention that an amendment to the State Constitution is necessary to prohibit secretarian appropriations of the public money.

Mr. Cushing writes that the necessity for such amendment is little understood, especially since Samuel J. Elder has given an opinion, widely circulated, that such appropriations are prohibited.

In an argument enclosed in his letter Mr. Cushing quotes the eighteenth amendment to the State Constitution and a Supreme Court comment. The latter concludes thus:

"But there is no constitutional prohibition against appropriations for higher educational institutions, societies or undertakings under secretarian control."

He reviews two Supreme Court decisions on the secretarian appropriation question and then continues, in part:

"The Supreme Court is of the opinion that there is no constitutional prohibition against appropriations for higher educational institutions, societies or undertakings under sectarian or ecclesiastical control.

"Its members divide on the question whether the constitution prevents the appropriation of public money for aiding any church, religious denomination, or religious society. Their opinion is not clear on the question whether money raised by taxation for general purposes and not for the purpose of expenditure within the sphere of the public or common schools may be used for sectarian schools.

"They express no opinion on the question whether the general funds of the Commonwealth which come from various corporation taxes, licenses, fees and general income, can be applied to sectarian schools.

"It would seem therefore that Article XVIII. of the amendments to the Constitution does not adequately prevent the appropriation of public funds for sectarian purposes."

Ex-Alderman Lake of Cambridge Dead

Former Alderman Charles H. Lake of Cambridge died today at Keene, N. H., where he underwent an operation two weeks ago. Mr. Lake was sixty-five years old. He started the Cambridge Coach Company in 1887. He was a member of the Cambridge City Council in 1891 and 1892, and of the Board of Aldermen in 1904, 1906 and 1907, being president in the latter two years.

Two Sentenced for Attack on Officer

William Tetman of Bolton street and Walter E. Guenthener of West Second street, South Boston, were convicted in the local court today of assault on Patrolman Michael Condon on August 28, and sentenced to one month each in the House of Correction. They appealed.

MISS FLORENCE ORMSBY DECLARES THAT MRS. MOHR MADE THREAT AGAINST DOCTOR

mysterious trailing of the Mohr auto by a motorcyclist.

The physician usually left Providence in time to get the 3.15 ferry. The ferry ride takes twenty minutes. Landing on the Bristol side on that Thursday night, the physician's car was started for Middletown by the chauffeur.

The run from the ferry was hardly under way when Dr. Mohr noticed that his car was being followed. The motorcyclist was following close enough for Dr. Mohr to see the cycle headlight and hear the explosions of the motor.

As the physician's car kept on, running at a lively clip, the motorcyclist kept in even distance in the rear. If the auto slackened speed a little, so did the motorcycle. If the Mohr machine hit up a faster clip, the cyclist gave his machine enough more speed to keep the gap steady.

It was a pursuit—evidently not with the intention to overtake the car, but to trail the physician all the way.

As Dr. Mohr noticed this he became uneasy. Then he was worried and finally alarmed.

"Montpelier," the Mohr villa, is not on the highway to Newport. It sets back about 300 yards on a side road, which leads off from the highway.

When the Mohr machine whirled from the main to the side road the mysterious motorcyclist kept on the highway. If he was deliberately following the Mohr car, he either had learned what he came for, or he did not venture into the side road and to the villa gateway.

DR. MOHR ALARMED.

The minute Healis stopped the auto at the villa's entrance Dr. Mohr spoke to him about the motorcycle.

That evening he talked about it to members of his villa staff. He spoke particularly to John McAndrews, superintendent of his estate.

Miss Burger was at the villa when Dr. Mohr arrived, having been in charge of the household staff for a few hours. The doctor told her all about the motorcyclist. He was nervous and anxious to get back to Providence.

In the Summer time Dr. Mohr usually remained at the villa from Thursday night until the following Monday or Tuesday morning.

But the very next morning after the motorcyclist followed his car, Healis got early orders to drive his employer back to Providence without delay. Everyone at "Montpelier" was surprised. Dr. Mohr was excited in manner and seemed eager to get away.

Now that members of the villa staff look back on events, they see that the motorcycle pursuit had gotten on Dr. Mohr's nerves.

It is now known that before the incident of the motorcycle Dr. Mohr had become fearful for his personal safety. He had spoken of threats made against him.

When he arrived in Providence the next morning Friday, August 27, he went directly to the office of Attorney Cauoer, told him he had been threatened for months and that he had been particularly uneasy since the discharge of Brown.

EXPECTED A BULLET.

Max Levi, a Newport attorney, confirmed today a report of last Sunday that Dr. Mohr had confided his fears to him.

It was said Sunday that Levi knew that the physician had spoken of threats. Levi said today:

"Dr. Mohr came into my office at several different times and said: 'I expect a bullet any time. I have received letters with threats.'

"I tried to reassure him, but he insisted that the threats were all very serious. Finally, to get him out of his frame of mind, I said: 'Well, it must be pleasant to expect a bullet at any minute.'"

Dr. Mohr also told Miss Ormsby at his office about the cyclist, mentioning Brown's name directly. He said to the girl:

"I was trailed last night by a motorcyclist. It clung to us all the time. When we speeded up the cycle did so. When we slowed down, I didn't like the looks of it. It really gave me a scare. I think it was Brown."

In his alleged confession to the Providence police Brown said that Mrs. Mohr gave him $100 in May to buy a motorcycle. He bought the machine of S. W. Bryant, a Broad street agent. Mr. Bryant said today:

"A woman may have been in on the transaction, but when Brown came to me he paid $50 down and gave the name of Dr. Mohr as a guarantee for further payments. The doctor came later and said it would be all right, that he would stand responsible for the payments, and, if necessary, would take $15 a month out of Brown's pay."

Brown's wife, who is a manicurist and hairdresser living at No. 39 Hammond street, Roxbury, and who came to Providence yesterday, says that Brown bought the motorcycle to save carfare when coming up to see her.

MISS ORMSBY SAYS WIFE MADE THREAT AGAINST DR. MOHR

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 10.—Miss Florences Ormsby, secretary to Dr. C. Franklin Mohr, victim of the auto murder, today declared that Mrs. Elizabeth Tiffany Blair Mohr, the young widow who is accused of plotting his death, had told her she felt she would be justified if she made the doctor pay with his life for his treatment of her.

"Mrs. Mohr told me more than once that she felt she had the right to dispose of him because of his conduct and treatment of her," added Miss Ormsby. "She knew the law would back her up in it.

"Dr. Mohr had been threatened so many times by his wife that it became an old story, but after the discharge of Victor Brown, his colored hostler, three weeks before the shooting, the doctor really became concerned.

"Brown hung around too close after his discharge to suit the doctor. He came to the office on Monday, the day before the tragedy, and had a heated argument with Dr. Mohr over his dismissal. He wanted to be put back to work. Dr. Mohr said he didn't know anything about the matter.

BROWN WANTED JOB BACK.

"Dr. Mohr said: 'I have no grudge against you, Victor.' Brown said: 'Then why don't you put me back on the job?' Dr. Mohr said: 'I didn't discharge you, it was John McAndrews.' Brown said: 'Yes, but you are the boss.' Dr. Mohr answered: 'But McAndrews is superintendent, and what he says goes.' Brown said: 'I know, but you own the place.' Dr. Mohr replied: 'That makes no difference. I cannot interfere with Superintendent McAndrews' authority.'

"And then they used more heated words and I feared Brown might lose his temper and do something, in the light of the threats and talk, so I winked at Dr. Mohr and enabled him to stop talking, and, after some more words, Brown went out of the office. As he left he exclaimed: 'Well, perhaps you will not be so well off.'

"Dr. Mohr and Mrs. Mohr often met on the street but never spoke to each other. The doctor would mention when he reached the office that he met Mrs. Mohr.

Mrs. Mohr made matters so troublesome for Miss Burger that she had to leave her position as Dr. Mohr's secretary last March and I succeeded her. Miss Burger continued to live in Providence. I don't know whether the doctor saw her regularly. He might have. I do know that Mrs. Mohr was jealous of almost every girl, but more jealous of Emily Burger than anybody else.

"Emily told me that Mrs. Mohr had threatened her over the telephone. She said she was afraid. Emily knew the doctor's life had been threatened.

"Emily said Mrs. Mohr wrote and telephoned warnings and that she followed her in the street when she went shopping and shadowed her from store to store like a detective. Mrs. Mohr was a sticker when she got on one's trail.

"It may sound silly, but I have really been afraid myself. I haven't felt safe since this thing. Two colored men have been hovering around my house. I have been afraid to go out without an escort. It may be just fancy, but I cannot shake off the fear. The strain has been terrible.

"The little red book in which Dr. Mohr kept his accounts and two others in which he registered no names, but kept trained by code entries and numbers, I have turned over to the police.

"The reason I hurried from the Rhode Island Hospital to the doctor's office the day he died was to get that red book. He had instructed me never to let the red book out of my possession. I always carried it home nights. I did the same with his bank books.

WANTED MORE ALLOWANCE.

"Some have wondered why I didn't tell the doctor of the warning to me by Mrs. Mohr by telephone the Saturday before the shooting, when she cautioned me not to ride to the Bristol Ferry in his car that night, as I had on other nights, adding that she felt I was her friend and that she did not wish to have me hurt.

"Well, as a matter of fact, I did tell the Doctor of that warning, but I suppose he thought it would pass like other threats.

"Mrs. Mohr complained that the Doctor had plenty of money to spend on other women, but that all he could allow her and her children was $25 a week. She said it was hard for her to get along on that allowance.

"She thought he ought to give her more. I don't know where she got the money to pay the help who acted as her aides. I do know that Victor Brown was her greatest confidant, and that she even had an informer on the Bristol ferry. Dr. Mohr pointed the ferry confederate out to me one day. I could pick him out any time.

"Now, as to their marriage. Dr. Mohr often mentioned it. He spent three hours one night telling me about it. Attorney Cushing claims he has a certificate. All I know is what the doctor told me. He said they were married by a justice of the peace and that he gave an assumed name, and that for the life of him he couldn't tell where or exactly when it occurred, because he was intoxicated at the time."

MARRIED IN LYNN.

The Providence and Barrington police are today in possession of information relative to the marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Mohr. The facts furnished them are to the effect that the ceremony was performed in Lynn, Mass., by a justice of the peace, in 1909, and Mohr is alleged to have given the name of "C. F. Moore."

It is possible that this was a clerical error on the part of the registration clerk because Mohr and Moore are pronounced exactly the same.

Miss Ormsby's testimony about Brown's displeasure over his discharge and that of other employes at Dr. Mohr's villa at Middletown, is interpreted by supporters of Mrs. Mohr as decidedly in her favor and damaging to Brown. Brown is alleged by the police to have confessed that it was he who shot Dr. Mohr in his automobile and Spellman who shot Miss Burger.

In fact the revelations of the past forty-eight hours have tended to involve Mrs. Mohr and Victor Brown, the latter, with the bulk of the evidence against him. The defense of Mrs. Mohr will unquestionably be that Brown had a pledge which he exercised without her knowledge or sanction. Miss Ormsby makes public today the statement that Brown on leaving Dr. Mohr's office the day before the shooting and getting no satisfaction, snarled at the doctor: "You may not be so well off."

This is analyzed as a veiled threat by Mrs. Mohr's champions. Then there is the testimony of Peter Smith, in charge of Dr. Mohr's stable, under whom Brown worked, who said: "Brown was so sore when Superintendent McAndrews discharged him that he threatened to kill McAndrews and he said: 'Somebody around here is going to burn up.'"

Directly in line with this, and carefully noted by Mrs. Mohr's lawyers, was her reply to Brown at Police Headquarters when arrested and confronted by the alleged confessions of the trio of negroes which ran:

"You know this is not so, Victor. You told me you would get square with the doctor and I told you not to be foolish."

All of which furnishes fabric with which to weave a very formidable defence on behalf of the accused widow.

Judging from present indications it promises to be a case of self-preservation with an attempt to shuffle the blame. The colored men are reported to have made confessions implicating Mrs. Mohr as the chief conspirator and they claimed she offered them $5,000 between them to kill the doctor and maim Miss Burger.

LEWIS ENTERS CASE.

William H. Lewis, former assistant United States District Attorney of Boston, and former Harvard football star, visited the colored prisoners today at the Bristol County jail. He was sent by Boston friends.

Soon afterward the negroes were transferred to the Providence County jail in Howard, by order of Judge Brown of the Superior Court. The change was made at the suggestion of Assistant Attorney General Claude Branch. It was felt there would be less chances for outsiders to see them at the Howard institution.

The author and contents of the two letters addressed to Victor Brown and found open in the pocket of Dr. Mohr when shot, were learned today. One was written by Brown's sister, and was signed "Ruth," and the other was written by a Miss Bertha Ray of No. 7 Guinn court, Newport, who signed her letter "Bertha." Miss Ray is employed by Miss Katherine Allan of No. 7 Park street, Newport. Neither letter had any bearing on the tragedy.

Two letters addressed to Healis, now in the possession of the police, are signed "Ducky" and were written by a New York woman.

These letters were taken by Constable Wallace from Brown's trunk when his personal effects were removed from the Mohr villa at Middletown.

Assistant Attorney General Branch held a long conference with Chief Inspector O'Neil of the detective bureau, Inspectors Ahearn and Godfrey, Chief Robbins of Barrington and Attorney Lewis of Boston.

Subpoenas were served today on a large number of witnesses to appear in the Warren Court September 15, when the three negroes will be arraigned on charges of first degree murder for the alleged killing of Dr. Mohr and murderous assault on his former secretary, Miss Emily G. Burger.

It is hinted today that counsel for Mrs. Mohr will endeavor to save her the humiliation of being arraigned with the colored defendants. It is said her counsel may seek a postponement. It is apparent that the Grand Jury will take up the case on September 20.

Mrs. Mohr expresses confidence that she will be cleared on September 15. She thinks that date will end her implication in the tragedy.

Miss Burger is reported to be very weak at the Rhode Island Hospital. The surgeons have not yet extracted the bullet from her jaw and the other in her right shoulder. She is still ignorant of the death of Dr. Mohr and carefully safe for him. At times in her hysteria she cries.

When picked up by a passing automobile and rushed to the hospital Miss Burger whispered with difficulty: "This must not get into the newspapers." When Mrs. Campbell, who was passing with her husband in their car, asked the wounded girl who did the shooting, Miss Burger replied: "I don't know. I don't know. Where is the doctor? Bring him where you take me. Be sure of that."

Synagogues and Temples Filled for New Year

With impressive ceremonies in all the Boston synagogues, thousands of Greater Boston Jews today continued their observance of the Jewish New Year, which began at sundown Wednesday.

The services in the various synagogues and temples, all of which were filled, began today at sunrise.

One of the most impressive features is the sounding of the shofar, or trumpet, which calls upon all members of the faithful to resign themselves to religious devotion.

One of the largest congregations attended services at the Salem street synagogue. The services here were conducted by Chief Rabbi Friedenman, Rabbi Hyman S. Katz assisting. The services at the Baldwin place synagogue were conducted by Rabbi Levy.

With the close of the services this afternoon the festivities incident to the New Year will begin. These will be followed by Yom Kipper, or the Day of Atonement, September 18.

$150,000 Suit for Injury to Woman

Alice H. Stone of Salem filed suit today against Daniel A. Donahoe, a Salem merchant; Pitman & Brown, contractors, and Mary E. Truslow, a real estate owner, asking damages of $50,000 from each. She claims she was hurt when the coping of a building owned or occupied by the defendants fell on her on the day of June 28.

PASTOR KICKED HER, SAYS WIFE

Mrs. Estella L. Tomkins, of Naples road, Brookline, was granted a divorce from the Rev. George Tomkins by Judge Philip J. O'Connell in the Norfolk Superior Court.

Mrs. Tomkins testified they were married in Merchantville, N. J., on September 23, 1901, that for the past fourteen years her husband had not contributed to her support, and that on various occasions he had been cruel and abusive.

"He broke into my home," said Mrs. Tomkins, "on the night that the libel was served on him. He had a large screwdriver in his hand and he threatened me with it. He kicked me and abused me terribly. He struck me twice."

Mrs. Tomkins' testimony was corroborated by seven other witnesses, including her daughter, Laura Pearl Tomkins, and servants employed by the family. The daughter testified that her father threatened her mother with a carving knife and had struck her, while they were living on Beacon street.

Mrs. Tomkins, at the time of their marriage, was Mrs. Winfield Baker, widow of one of Tomkins' former followers in Merchantville, N. J.

The Rev. Mr. Tomkins organized the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Camden, N. J., several years ago.

New York Girl Dies from Heart Failure in Falmouth Surf

FALMOUTH, Sept. 10.—Miss Eleanor Maury, nineteen, of New York city died of heart disease while bathing in the surf off the yacht landing on the estate of James Marshall, a New York millionaire, at Quissett.

Miss Maury was the guest of Miss Marguerite Marshall. Both young women had gone in bathing.

Miss Marshall missed Miss Maury and then saw her floating away face down. Miss Maury swam to her and found her apparently dead.

Miss Marshall succeeded in dragging her companion to the landing. Doctors stated that death was due to heart failure.

Prince Humbert of Italy at the Front

By International News Service.

MISS CATHERINE WOODS, Dorchester telephone operator who saved a little girl from being killed by an electric car.

Miss Catherine Woods, a telephone operator at the Fields Corner exchange, ran in front of an electric car near the telephone exchange building and carried to safety a four-year-old girl. Eye-witnesses declare that the child, but for Miss Woods' courage and quickness, would have been struck by the car and perhaps fatally injured.

Miss Woods had just left the exchange in company with another operator, when she saw three children running out of the way of the trolley car. One of the tots seemed unnerved by fear, and stopped in the centre of the track.

The rescue was observed by many persons and they praised Miss Woods highly.

Weston Bridge Too Narrow for This Chauffeur

Weston bridge, just beyond Norumbega Park, has been the scene of so many narrow escapes that plans have been discussed for replacing the historic stone arches with a more spacious structure, but it remained for a speeding motorist to demonstrate that the bridge was too narrow for the traffic of those who are in a hurry.

An automobile came tearing down the steep South street hill to the bridge across the Charles. There is a curve at the foot of the hill leading to the bridge, and the automobilist swerved a little too far to the side.

The consequence was that his car tore away about forty feet of the bridge railing. The Metropolitan police station is close by, and the officers, hearing the crashing of the rail, came running out of the house to see what had happened.

They are wondering yet why the automobile did not go into the river. It must have gone over the bridge on two wheels and in defiance of all the laws of gravity, they say; but go over it did, for they saw it streaking down the street on the Auburndale side of the river, into Commonwealth avenue.

Asks Police to Find Runaway Brother

Joseph Attaya of No. 123 Brown avenue, Roslindale, asked the Boston police today to locate his ten-year-old brother Abraham. Mr. Attaya said that the brother formerly lived with him, but recently has been living with another brother George Attaya of No. 139 Congress street, Portland, Me. The runaway boy has returned to Boston, and has been seen selling papers on the street this week.

FRUIT COMPANY READY TO PAY RANSOM

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10.—The United Fruit Company advertises that it will pay the ransom demanded by an anonymous letter writer for Captain McLaren, two members of the crew and two passengers of the lost liner Marowijne, who, the writer says, are held prisoners on an island in the Gulf of Mexico.

The advertisement is signed by C. H. Ellis, vice-president of the company. He explains it is called forth by the receipt of a second anonymous letter from the person who wrote the company, August 23, that five men from the "Marowijne were held for ransom and that the ship's papers and the captain's watch had been sent to the company's New York office as proof. The writer is invited to communicate with Mr. Ellis.

"We have received none of the proofs you refer to at our New York office," the advertisement reads. "If you have any proofs present them; we are willing to pay ransom demanded." Mr. Ellis says he places no faith in the anonymous writer's claims, but that he wishes, if possible, to clear up the mystery.

Recent search of the gulf islands by naval and United Fruit vessels revealed no trace of any Marowijne survivors.

F-4 DEAD ARE ON WAY TO THE U. S.

HONOLULU, Sept. 10.—The dead of submarine F-4 in eight caskets draped with the American flag are aboard the United States steamship Supply, which has sailed for San Francisco.

Four of the bodies which had been identified, occupied separate coffins and will be sent to relatives. The fragmentary remains of only nine others of the remainder of the crew of twenty-two were recovered from the debris filled wreck of the submarine and these occupied the four other coffins, which will be sent to the National Cemetery at Arlington, Virginia.

As the funeral cortege, escorted by three artillery companies and a military band, moved through the streets, crowds stood with bared heads, and the flags of the city were at half-mast.

Governor L. B. Pinkham, Mayor J. C. Lane and military and naval officials had places in the procession and attended the services held at the naval station.

Arrest Eleven for Illegal Fishing

Eleven Boston men were arrested at Salem today by Fish and Game Warden Burney and acting City Marshal Begley, charged with illegal fishing in the Danvers River. The police say the Italians came from Boston about a week ago and started fishing operations in the river on a large scale. They were warned to desist, but paid no attention to the warnings. Early today a squad of officers captured eleven of the fishermen.

You Can't "Get By" a Roessle Beer Sign

YOU see it in the dealer's window—and it sets you thinking how delicious is Roessle Beer—You want a case for your home—and in you go.

You, like everyone else, have learned that there is a big difference in beers—That's why you say "and be sure to send me Roessle."

Well Ripened

BEER must be well "ripened" to be at its very best. That is why our Master Brewer gives so much thought to the aging of Roessle Beer. There is no artificial means used to hasten its ripening. It lays in large storage vats of ample capacity — slowly and thoroughly aging—until our Master Brewer decides it has reached the highest degree of mellowness. When you order beer for the home, ask for "Roessle." You will find it pays to say, "Send Me Roessle."

Their Married Life

Warren Surprises Every One with One of His Disagreeable Moods

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

THEY had planned a trip through the Santa Clara Valley, but they had started late and beforehand had come one of the most disagreeable events of the trip. Everyone had been tired and had slept late. When Warren woke up, Helen was already taking a shower, and from the tone of his voice as he spoke to her she knew that he was in a temper.

"What are you doing up so early?" he growled.

"It isn't early, dear, it's nearly 8."

"Well, you might at least let a fellow sleep when he has a headache. Why don't you close that door?"

The bathroom door was open a crack. Helen had left it so purposely because she wanted to hear Warren get up, as she supposed he would soon. The night before they had decided on an early start. Now she leaned toward the door and closed it gently. She could hear him muttering to himself and knew that it was likely to be a stormy day.

After a few minutes she emerged from her bath and went into the room. Warren did not speak to her, and after she had begun to dress, Louise spoke to her through the door, as she did every morning.

"You people nearly ready for breakfast?"

"Almost," sang out Helen, cheerily.

"You needn't think I am going to one of those cafeterias," growled Warren.

"Aren't you, Warren?"

"No, we'll stay at the hotel and get a decent breakfast," he said decidedly.

"But I thought you liked it at the cafeterias, dear. We certainly have had good things to eat there."

"Maybe you think we have. I don't. I said we'll stay here this morning."

Helen did not reply and finished dressing. They met Louise and Bob in the hall, and Helen mentioned immediately the fact that Warren wanted to eat at the hotel.

"Well, old fellow, the other place is not swell enough for you," chaffed Bob.

"I didn't say so," growled Warren, "but for once I imagine we can stand for a decent meal."

Bob raised his eyebrows and the rest said nothing. They entered the dining room and breakfast was ordered. All through the meal very little was said. Louise mentioned once that the day promised to be fine and Helen agreed, but for the main part their food was eaten in silence.

The breakfast was no better than the one served in the less expensive place and the atmosphere surrounding the breakfast table was the reverse of pleasant. Warren lingered in the exchange afterward and Helen and Louise went upstairs to finish dressing for the day.

The little chambermaid who did their rooms was already busy. Helen thought she was one of the cheeriest little women imaginable, and so very young.

"You manage to keep happy, don't you?" Helen said smiling.

"Oh, yes, ma'm" said the little chambermaid, straightening from the bed and smiling ecstatically. "I should be happy; the doctor says that my husband will soon be well again."

"Are you married?" said Helen in surprise. "I thought you looked very young."

"I am nineteen," was the answer.

"Then you don't ordinarily do this work? What is your name?"

"Margot, ma'am, and I am just working to help out with the doctor bills."

Louise had come into the room and was as interested as Helen.

"What has been the matter with your husband?" she asked.

"He has been operated on for appendicitis," she announced gravely. "But they are holding his work for him and he will soon be able to take it again."

"I think that is perfectly fine," said Helen, mentally resolving to help out with some clothes before they left San Francisco. And she would have said more, but at that moment the door opened and Warren came in. He took in the situation, and growled out:

"What are you poking for? We haven't got all day to catch that train."

"Why, we have plenty of time," said Helen, glancing at the traveling clock that stood on her dresser.

"Well, if you're ready, we might as well go."

Helen hated being spoken to in that manner before any one, and she had noticed the blonde head of the girl bend low over her work. But it was better to say nothing than to raise an argument, so she took up her gloves and bag and followed Warren out of the room.

"You must have wanted to do something to start a conversation with as chambermaid," he said sarcastically.

"Why, how can you be so unjust, Warren?" said Helen indignantly. "As though it would hurt me to ask the girl a few questions!"

"What could you want to ask her about?"

"She was telling me about her husband, who is in the hospital."

"Ha, looking for sympathy and a substantial tip, and I bet you were nicely taken in by it, too."

"I don't believe anything of the kind," said Helen.

"It's an old game, that," sneered Warren. "I thought you were out of the kindergarten class, my dear. Upon my soul, I did."

"I'm sorry to disappoint you," said Helen quietly.

"What's that?"

"Nothing at all. Shall we hurry? Bob and Louise are getting ahead of us."

"The Wrong Combination"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1915, by International News Service.

A BOLD little woman who beckons to disaster hands the safe of her heart down to the sneak-thieves and crows. "There, knaves, I give it to you! You are two babies with a bank that has no lock. You are two birds after a fly in an amber bead. You are two children who puzzle over the Japanese box; 'first get the key out and then unlock me!' Ah-ah! My heart is my own—and I know the combination. The one you have there is wrong. For you see the combination with which you open any others is not the one you may use for mine. My sides are tender with laughing at you!"

Dan's pal studies and frowns and between the two of them they breathe softly and twist and say nothing! And maybe it truly's the wrong combination.

The mocking lady should never have wooed burglars—for sometimes Dan sits back on his heels and whispers grimly, "BREAK it open!"

In Our Wonderful World

The belief is held by many high authorities that sugar helps to ward off fatigue. Consumed in fairly large quantities, it acts rapidly, its full effect being felt about two hours after taking it. Scientific experiments carried out with the aid of the ergograph, an instrument for registering accurately variations of muscular power, show that sugar gives an increase of physical power ranging from 60 to 70 per cent.

The camphor tree grows only in the most mountainous parts of Formosa, inhabited by head-hunting savages, whom none of the successive invaders of the island have been able to subdue. These savages are quite alive to the value of the trees, and fiercely oppose all attempts to get possession of the forests.

Since the Japanese took the island after their successful campaign against China in the nineties they have been carrying on a carefully conceived plan of gradual penetration. They make paths six feet in width through the virgin forests; every 120 yards stands a guardhouse, and every fourth or fifth guardhouse is a small fort entrenched and defended by wire entanglements, telephonic intercommunication, machine guns, and all the resources of western military science are employed. In spite of these elaborate precautions the loss among the camphor gatherers amounts to hundreds of lives annually.

The authorities of Nice are making use of two large plants for purifying water on the Paris Otto ozone system. First there was erected an ozone sterilizing plant at Bon Voyage, which handled 675,000 cubic feet per day and, as this was found to be successful, the next step was to put in a second works at Rimiez, and at the present time the city is entirely supplied by ozone-sterilized water.

The only source for the supply of potash in the British Isles, in addition to the imports of nitre from India, is the potash made from Irish and Scottish kelp. The Irish kelp-burning industry has almost disappeared in recent years owing to other sources being tapped for the supply of iodine.

Experience has shown that the end of a bar of steel that has been broken off should never be used for the working or cutting end of a die or punch. The fibers in the end of such a bar have been so severely strained in breaking that the metal is unsuitable for performing the work done by a punch or die.

Experience has shown that the best kind of steel for a punch or die is that which has been hardened and tempered in oil. Water hardening steel is unsuitable for punches and dies, as it is too brittle and is liable to crack in the hardening.

Why Not Have Curly, Wavy Hair?

While abroad last year a matron much envied for her youthful looks generously confided to me several little beauty secrets which I prize highly. One of the best of these is that straight hair can be made wavy and curly over night by merely applying a little liquid silmerine. Some peculiar attribute of this harmless fluid causes the hair to dry in the most exquisite curls and waves, having all the appearance of true naturalness.

My friends who have tried this are simply delighted. I find that pure liquid silmerine can be procured from any druggist here, and a few ounces will keep the hair in curl for several weeks. There is nothing gummy, greasy or sweaty about it, one simply moistens a few strands to use. Be sure if you will, this tonight—again with a clean tooth brush—a look in your mirror tomorrow morning will give you a most agreeable surprise.—Anita Amber's Beauty Talks.—Advertisement.

The Story of a Doctor's Wife

Told by the Wife Herself

No. 10—Connie Dines With Harvey and Discovers That He Is Not a Gentleman

"THE happiest women, like the happiest nations, have no history," wrote George Eliot, who had plenty of—history! That's true enough. The woman whose life is a series of "Got up, dressed, bathed the baby, poured John's coffee, did the mending, waited for John to come home" days does not appeal to the modern taste which likes its life served with a sauce piquante. But Madame Modernity often finds that self-same sauce turning bitter on her lips.

In looking back over the six years Peter Drayton has been in my life as lover, as husband-lover, as husband—and finally just because I was Mrs. Peter Drayton—I can see that I have made history and unhappiness for myself and that they have gone hand in hand.

When Minnie Farley came home to seek forgetfulness from the failure her six months of married life with Harvey Blake had spelled, the wildest jealousy tore at my heart. I suppose that if I had loved Peter perfectly with the faith such a love must have engendered, I would have trusted him and would not have tortured myself by worries over the intimate relation of patient and doctor to "a mind diseased" he assumed in going to see Marian each day.

And so I took dates with Harvey Blake, friend of my youth, and went to lunch at the Stuyvesant with him against my husband's expressed wishes. The world never thinks kindly of a married woman who is seen about with a man not her husband—especially when he is another woman's husband! And events made my lunching with Harvey Blake particularly outrageous.

"It's great of you to come, Connie.

"Everyone's so down on me since Marian came home. But you're a great little old pal—you trusted me, didn't you?"

Harvey's eyes were warm with admiration. I wondered vaguely how he could look at another woman so when he was breaking his heart over Marian.

I DINE WITH HARVEY

"This is great—cozy table in a quiet corner—my little sweetheart. Connie, grown up to be a stunning woman, and playing truant from friend husband to stand by me. Go as far as you like in ordering, little woman. Whatever you want the best. Nothing's too good for my girl!" he whispered in an undertone that made me long for the courage to sweep up from the table and away from him and the terrace of the Stuyvesant.

Just then Jimmie Farley and a group of men came in and were ushered to a table nearby. Jim bowed to me gravely. I remembered that he always lunched at the Stuyvesant and wished that I had not come with his sister's husband to flaunt myself in the face of my husband's chum. But I had been sure that I ought to come—and now I knew that I must see my blunder through.

"Sonne bubbles, Connie? Haut Sauterne? A cup? Go as far as you like—expense is no object. After Marian's extravagance, a gay little lunch for my first sweetheart can't set me back much."

Had Harvey always dwelt so insistently on the cost of things? I wondered. "I don't drink anything more than one long iced tea," I said, with an imitation of a casual manner I was far from feeling.

"You are tired—just like Maldie—posing. Now, what's the harm of a quiet drink. I'd like to know? You women always want to save on the price of a drink—but you don't begrudge yourselves dresses from the most expensive places in town. I suppose that rig you have on set Peter back a couple of hundred.

"You're nervous and unhappy, Harvey, so I'll forgive you for remarks you must know aren't in very good taste. About the lunch, may I have some caviar to start with?"

Harvey laughed. "Begrudges herself a three-dollar bottle of wine that would flavor the whole meal with sociability and make it easier for me to do a little of the love-making you women seem to be craving in and out of season—and then wants to start with ninety-cents' worth of flim-flam."

Suddenly I knew that Harvey had been drinking and that he was a miser and a mean, low creature who knew neither gentleness nor love such as a warm, vital creature like Marian must have to live. And in my miserable jealousy sweep me into the indiscretion of lunching with him there publicly. I could fairly imagine coldly critical eyes on me as I sat tete-a-tete at the world saying, "See Mrs. Peter Drayton lunching with that Blake man Marian Farley has had to leave because he is such a brute. And to husband is a lifelong friend of the Farleys and Marian's physician. Isn't that Drayton woman a fool? Or do you imagine she is interested in Blake? Her husband used to like Marian, you know."

My position was odious. I loathed Harvey. I hated myself for being there. And in the face of that roomful of people, how could I get up and sweep out of the place?

To this day I do not know what a wise, sane woman would have done—provided such a woman had managed to embroil herself in a position like mine.

JIM CALLS ON CONNIE

Suddenly events began to sweep me on in a relentless march of circumstances which have swept me through the years to today.

"Mr. James Far-r-ley—Mr. James Far-r-ley," came the voice of a page.

Nervously I watched Jim Farley's strong, stocky figure making its sure way across the room to the phone booths in the hall outside. Before I had time to break bread with Harvey he stood at my side.

"Mrs. Drayton, I have been called to what may be my sister's deathbed. . . . Peter told me to bring you along if you were here. . . . Marian has asked for you. You'll come?"

I got to my feet quickly. "Oh, she can't be dying. Peter will save her—he will, I know it."

James Farley smiled a wan and twisted smile at the strange faith I was suddenly showing. We had both forgotten Harvey. But he had risen, too, and was making his own request. "Let me come, too, Jim."

"Come down to the street with us. . . . And then go to your room. If it's the end I'll phone—unless Peter thinks it would hurt her too much to see you."

In the cab I nobbed out my misery in selfish forgetfulness that I sat by a man who was going grimly to what might be his little sister's deathbed. "I'm sorry I was with him—I thought there was his side of the story—I see what he is now—oh, Peter has to save her—he will, Jim, he will."

"I think he will," said Jim quietly. "It's her heart and nerves—she's been loved too much to stand up well under the strain of living with a man like that. . . . And I'm afraid she did not love him enough—anyway. . . . But I am thinking about you just now, little woman. Peter Drayton in a big man in the making. His wife must not fail him, or fail to understand him. You're a turbulent creature—who will have to be whipped into submission—whipped, or kissed. I don't know which, Connie—but old Peter will do it."

And then he fell to talking about his sister—rambling feebly through her youth and girlhood—in his eyes a prayer that Peter might be given strength to save her.

I shall never forget that agonizing drive out to the Farley place. And how often I have remembered Jim's words. "You're a turbulent creature. . . . who will have to be whipped into submission—whipped or kissed. I don't know which, Connie—but old Peter will do it."

The Farley place looked dark—like the house of death. I entered into its stillness with throbbing heart.

HAD HIS STOMACH ALL PUMPED OUT

Mrs. Rose Parker of Rosemary Hill Relates How Her Husband Suffered.

Of late years when a medical discovery is made and public tests of it are demanded, so that its merits can be established, the persons or firm to whom the invention is credited selects personally so many people, and on those selected the remedy is tried

MRS. ROSE PARKER.

Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, has been submitted to a far more severe scope of tests. One note of the cases that it has relieved have been selected, and still it has met with signal success. An invention is recalled in instance. In Boston it is repeating the success that has attended it in other cities. Every day numerous signed testimonials are being received from local people praising Plant Juice and telling of the benefit they have derived from its use. Among many others is that of Mrs. Rose Parker, who resides at Rosemary Hill, Needham Heights, and is a well-known and popular lady. She says:

"For years I have been troubled with my stomach, indigestion and dyspepsia. My food would sour in my stomach, causing gas, which pressed upon my heart and gave me great pain and shortness of breath. I had no appetite, was restless and nervous and could not sleep at night. My husband had been sick for years with stomach trouble and had to go to the hospital for treatment and have his stomach pumped out, but got no relief whatever, until three weeks ago a friend recommended Plant Juice to him, and we both have been taking it. I can truthfully say that it has been a godsend to us, as we are both feeling fine and are enjoying better health than we have had in years—and Plant Juice did it. I can certainly recommend Plant Juice to every one."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Co.'s Store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

HUE AND CRY AGAINST A PLAY!

Some person or association is and has been trying to arouse official action against "THE SONG OF SONGS" at the Tremont Theatre, alleging that it contains scenes that are too realistic, speeches that are too audacious, and a story that should remain in its original form between the covers of a book. Every individual is entitled to his viewpoint, but when the consensus of public and newspaper opinion is so favorably overwhelming, as in the case of "The Song of Songs," it is a good sign that the play is worth while from an artistic and entertaining standpoint.

The critics were unanimous in declaring "The Song of Songs" the most remarkable play ever exhibited in Boston. The public has backed up this finding; and as the Transcript pointed out—"None need sit before Mr. Sheldon's play unless he choose to do so." Nor is anyone compelled to look at the Venus de Milo!

The Venus de Milo is the most priceless treasure in the world. The German government would feel repaid for its part in the war if it could wrest this work of art from France. And yet it is only the statue of a nude woman! Such is the idea of art over there.

"The Song of Songs" is the nude statue of a woman's soul. It should be destroyed. Such is the idea of art over here.

THEY'LL HAVE A HOT OLD TIME IN HULL TONIGHT

When the Mrs. and children are gathered about you this evening, at the mahogany table in your pretty dining room, have a thought—an earnest, sympathetic thought — for poor ole Harry Dolan.

Harry is the popular chairman of the combined Republican Ward and City Committees of Cambridge.

The Cambridge Repubs will banquet this evening at Hotel Pemberton, Hull, Mass. They have advertised the fact that former Congressman Samuel W. McCall and Lieutenant-Governor Grafton D. Cushing will be present AND speak, and that former Governor Eugene N. Foss will be present but will NOT speak.

Poor ole Harry Dolan!

How would YOU like the job of restraining Eugene N. Foss from speaking at a Republican dinner where he's to be his rivals for the gubernatorial nomination are expected to orate?

And suppose they DO check Mr. Foss from—how they DO "can" his speech.

What will the Republican rank and file up and down the State, say to that?

* * *

Is there, or is there not, a muddle-headed conspiracy among Republicans, Democrats, mugwumps and Indians not taxed, to force this nomination on the Old Boy?

Every day brings further indications to it, however the professionals may try to duck and dodge and sidestep, one of the big issues of the present prize campaign is going to be the national prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

* * *

It appears to be the fact that men connected directly or indirectly with the liquor business are doing more than their fair share towards making prohibition THE issue.

Witness the repeated interruptions of Eugene N. Foss's campaign speeches by liquor men.

* * *

Mr. Foss may not have a Chinaman's chance on his contest with McCall and Cushing, but whatever the size of his primary vote, one week from Tuesday next, a not inconsiderable part of it will come from men who believe in free speech and who have already taken offence at the acts of Mr Foss's liquor-trade opponents.

* * *

The Prohibition party candidate for Governor Mr. William Shaw, will speak on Boston Common, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

* * *

Mr. Shaw spoke yesterday at a number of places in Worcester County and found expressed his complete satisfaction with the result of his first day's labor on the stump.

* * *

"The liquor traffic, more than any other institution," Mr. Shaw told his friendly audiences, "is responsible for neglected childhood, degraded manhood and womanhood, broken homes, poverty, degeneration, imbecility, insanity, pauperism and crime. It was born intrigue and found guilty in the world court of public opinion."

Street commissioner Colonel "Jack" Dunn certainly made one big mistake yesterday.

* * *

Why'nt he advertise the fact that

OUT TODAY!

MRS. WARDWELL, JUDGE KNOWLES' HOUSEKEEPER

Mrs. Wardwell, in Bungalow at time of murder. Heard shots and threat made by unseen assassin.

"Tom" Giblin and "Tom" Naud would both positively appear at one and the same hearing, call tickets to fill, and apply the proceeds to the worst streets in any first-class city in the United States?

Meanwhile reserve one and one-half for the Public Service Commission and the request of the Bay State Street Railway gentlemen for permission to establish the 7-cent fare.

Tomorrow's Republican outing in Caledonian Grove is advertised on the billboards like the circus was coming to town.

Effort of the G. O. P. machine to demonstrate youth, vigor, popularity and Open Door-ness would be funny if it wasn't pathetic.

* * *

Republicans of Ward 2, Manchester, N. H., have declared for Senator John W. Weeks for President in 1916.

Every little helps.

Remember that report of the Prohibition convention in Kentucky a few years ago? "The Prohibitionists of Kentucky," it said, "met yesterday in Convention at Frankfort and nominated Henry S. Watzendorf for Governor. And they'll both vote for him."

Now come the suffragists, to him in a public statement that the "Antis are in cahoots with the Massachusetts Liquor League."

Poor old John Barleycorn!

As for us, say the Suffragists, WE are keeping hands off. WE have but one plank, one issue, one platform, Votes for Women!"

* * *

Note that former Representative "Sam" Starkweather, of Williamstown, trolled into North Adams last night to hear the Old Boy's speech in Main street.

Brother Starkweather started in by trying to "kid" the former Governor and wound up by declaring his intention to vote for Foss in the primaries!

So 'Gene'll get one vote, anyhow.

* * *

Eva Tanguay will head the bill at Keith's next week.

Consumption Cure of Renon Doubted

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 — A dispatch from Paris to the effect that Dr. Louis Renon of the faculty of the University of Paris had announced that the result of long research on his part proved that tuberculosis should be treated by chemical means and not by serums caused a great deal of comment among New York authorities on the disease. As usual in the case of reports of alleged new remedies for the disease, some physicians who discussed the subject were of the opinion that all judgment of the new treatment should be reserved until it had been tested thoroughly. Others were extremely sceptical regarding the merits of the treatment as it was briefly outlined in the dispatch.

WOMAN SOUGHT IN KNOWLES MYSTERY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 10.—The revelation of a hidden chapter in the life of Judge Willis E. Knowles, who was murdered from ambush in sight of his home in North Scituate, was indicated today by the search of the Providence police for a woman, to whom, it has just become known, Judge Knowles paid attentions for a time extending over two years.

The Providence police believe that this woman, who is said to have recently cut short the acquaintance between herself and the judge, may have the secret which will disclose the motive for the assassination. It is believed that she discovered in the Judge's life some reason for asking him to discontinue his attentions.

Substantiating this new theory is the information furnished the police that a woman came from out of town late and that she was going to Get three years ago, openly threatening to well and go home with dad about the judge on sight. This woman was induced to leave Providence after a threat by the informant of a close associate of Judge Knowles, who declared that the police fully believed she would carry out her threats.

The attention to the new police theory is a search at the bottom of the matter, is the statement of Mrs. Edgar Wardwell, housekeeper for Judge Knowles for 10 years, to the effect that it was a man's voice which she heard. Now for the first time, you—just as the three fatal shots rang out.

Mrs. Wardwell, who is the last person known to the police to have seen the judge before he was shot down a hundred yards from his doorstep, is certain that the voice was a man's and that there was no suggestion of accent in the words.

WALTHAM HIGH WILL USHER IN FOOTBALL SEASON TOMORROW

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS OF BASEBALL, BOXING AND ALL OTHER SPORTS

FIRST FOOTBALL GAME BOOKED TOMORROW

In accordance with its usual custom, Waltham High will usher in the local football season tomorrow with Marlboro High for its opponent. For the contest, also in accordance with custom, Waltham High rules the favorite.

Since this game will be the first in which the new rules of the season will govern, nearly 2,000 invitations have been sent to the coaches, captains and managers of the different schools and colleges throughout New England.

A speech by Mayor Kearns and a parade of the two elevens, headed by a band, will be another feature suited to the opening pigskin match of 1915.

Most of the Watch City outfit, especially the seven veterans, are in excellent fighting trim. One of the seasoned warriors has kept in trim during the Summer by swinging a pick; another has been a shipping clerk and still another has been doing heavy work for the city.

A FORMIDABLE ELEVEN.

It will be formidable aggregation that Marlboro has to face tomorrow. Two of the men, Captain Clifford Richardson and Albert Smith, were all-scholastic selections last Fall.

Little is known about Marlboro except that the team is turning along for the fray under the tutelage of Coach Gentz Hayes. One of the teachers in the school and some of the more famous alumni have been lending a hand, too. Feloguin, the elusive, hard-working back, will be missing. Captain Henry La Fourne can capably fill his place. He is a veteran of known ability.

Despite the broiling sun, Coach Harry Dame sent his men through the paces yesterday afternoon. A short scrimmage, practice in catching punts and work with the "dummy" featured the session.

In Gately, Dame has unearthed a punter who bids fair to be a second Rollo Fagan. With little effort Gately sent the ball from forty-five to fifty yards. But beneath he is a seasoned and sure-footed player. Captain Clifford Richardson will take charge of the kicking tomorrow.

COACH HAYES HOPEFUL.

Last year Marlboro was only a fair team, and with several of its strongest linemen gone it will probably be a question of the size of the score, not which team will win.

Coach Hayes of the up State eleven, however, is confident that his men will make the "comet" fast at all times and that his charges have a fair chance of victory.

While most of the Marlboro contingent have plenty of weight they are for the most part shy in experience. The squad, numbering about twenty-six players, has been working slowly. The first scrimmage was indulged in yesterday. It lasted for twelve minutes. Both elevens will take it easy today, perfecting passes and signals.

A. G. SPALDING OF BASEBALL FAME DIES

By International News Service.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 10.—The body of Albert Goodwin Spalding, probably the most widely known man in the sporting world, was removed to a crematory today and reduced to ashes.

Mr. Spalding, who was in his sixty-sixth year, suffered a stroke of apoplexy and was unconscious up to time of his death. For many years he had made San Diego his home, and owned much valuable property there. He was born in Illinois in 1850. Like almost every normal boy he began to play baseball in his early school days, although the game then was far from what it is today. After leaving school he worked as a clerk in a grocery store at $5 a week. He was a left-hand pitcher, and his first important amateur baseball games were to be played.

MADE FAMOUS BY ONE GAME.

In 1867 he pitched for the Rockford team of Illinois against the famous National Club of Washington, and to the gratification of his fellow townsmen the local team defeated the more renowned rivals by 24 to 18.

That game was the making of A. G. Spalding. He made the town of Rockford famous for its baseball team. The game against the Washington champions ended with the score of 24 to 18.

After that game he received many offers to join that club, and he finally decided to play with the Excelsiors of Chicago. He stayed in Chicago but a few months, and he went back to Rockford until 1871.

That year he accepted Harry Wright's offer to pitch for the Boston Red Stockings. Spalding was a pitcher for the Boston Red Stockings, for five years, was a terror in the box. He pitched about four games a week during the five seasons he was with Boston, and not once did he crack. His control was as near perfect as could possibly be.

JUMPS TO CHICAGO.

His last year with Boston, 1875, was his best, and then he jumped to Chicago, with Boner, McVey and White, who, with Spalding, were known as the "big four" of baseball.

There was a rule at that time against "reserving" of players, and the "big four" retirers were in jeopardy of being driven out of baseball.

William Hulbert of Chicago, who induced them to jump, saw the plan and called a meeting and organized the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs for the purpose of keeping the "big four" in the game. This was the inception of the present National League.

He remained two years with Chicago and then retired from active playing and went into the business of manufacturing sporting goods with his brother on a capital of $800. He built that sum into millions.

INDIAN ELEVEN IN RUGGED WORKOUTS

CARLISLE, Pa., Sept. 10.—With the opening game a week from tomorrow, the Carlisle Indian football squad is putting in some extremely hard work at the hands of Head Coach Kelley and Assistant Coaches Welch and McGillis. It is thought that by the time the Albright College brings its husky eleven here on September 18 the Redskins will be in good shape.

The squad of candidates is daily increasing until it now numbers seventy. Coach Kelley spent almost the entire week in getting the aborigines in good physical condition, giving numerous exercises for this purpose. Several laps around the cinder track on Indian field, falling on the ball, running down under punts, kicking and tackling, comprised the rudimentary work. On Tuesday the varsity players of last year were lined up on one end of the field while the new candidates were divided into squads and sent down the field under punts to tackle the varsity men.

So far Henry Broker and Captain Calac have been doing the punting, and both have shown to good advantage, getting off numerous spirals averaging fifty yards. It is expected that as the season advances this distance can be materially increased.

Starting Thursday, Kelley formed four elevens and gave a few simple plays and signals. These were thoroughly tried out and rehearsed the remainder of the week.

On Friday, after a long signal drill a short scrimmage was held, which lasted twenty minutes. No definite lineup was held as Kelley kept trying out the players in various positions. The varsity and reserve teams practiced on the upper field, while the remainder of the squad held their workouts on the lower field.

On Monday Kelley expects to cut down the squad in order that it may be more easily handled and from that time on the scrimmages period will be increased each afternoon until Friday, when the first team players will have a chance to rest up for Saturday's game against Albright.

Only one injury has been reported so far. The first day Wofford, who played at half last season, appeared on the field. He slipped while running down under a punt and sprained his wrist. It is hoped that he will be in condition to play in the first game. The spirit at Carlisle this year is splendid and the Redskins expect to have a good season.

Mack Picks the Phillies to Win National Flag

Connie Mack, the wise old owl of baseball, who seldom makes a prediction and even less often a wrong one, thinks so much of the Phils' chances to win the pennant that he does not hesitate to pick them as the 1915 National League champions.

"I believe the Phillies will win this year," said the tall tactician in Philadelphia recently. "They are hitting well, but anyone who thinks that is the club's whole strength or even the greater part of it would be making a great mistake. Pat Moran is getting fine pitching and good fielding, and the club is playing tip-top baseball. Good theories are being used, and I look to see them engage with the American League champions in October."

In regard to the American League race, Connie would not have much to say. He concluded that Boston, Detroit and Chicago each had a chance.

Dorchester "Fan" Is Hustling to See Big Series

J. E. FLEMING.

The last vote coupon in the AMERICAN'S World's Series contest will be published in next Sunday's American. It's a big vote coupon too—the kind that will win for you. Get your forces together and make a "garrison finish" with next Sunday's vote coupon.

Watch for the new vote standing in next Sunday's American, the last before the winners are announced.

Only two days more of hustling and the great fight will be over.

Then, if you feel confident of success don't "slow up" until after next Sunday's votes are all rounded up.

Next Sunday's 10-vote coupon can be made to do wonders—it's the final work that will count.

John E. Fleming of Dorchester is putting up a fine fight to be among the winners. He says: "Save a place for me on that train. I'll be there."

Directum I. Gets a N. E. Record; Mile in 1:58 1-2

HARTFORD, Sept. 10.—Directum I., the world's champion pacer, reduced up a new New England mark when he paced a mile, driven by "Tom Murphy," in 1:58½, at Charter Oak Park.

Directum was at the quarter in 29¾ seconds, the half in 1:00¾, the three-quarter in 1:29¾, and finished the mile in 1:58½.

Peter Scott, the Charter Oak Stake winner, placed the 2:21 trot to his credit in straight heats. Murphy also handled the reins, every time point. The same driver won the 2:14 trot with Muirhill in straight heats.

Yale Men Engage in Light Scrimmage

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 10.—For the first time this season the Yale football candidates lined up for scrimmage yesterday at the Madison Avenue High. Three elevens were formed. The men were shifted about constantly so that the coaches might observe the work of the men in different positions.

In the morning the men practised punting, passing and individual work under the direction of Coach Hinkey and assistants.

Harvard Football Star Sprains Ankle

Despite the fact that Harvard's football practice does not start until Monday, the first injury of the season is recorded. Joey Gilman, varsity tackle in 1912, while training for the track work at Naples, Me., sprained his ankle. The injury came in practicing football starts.

Charley Daly Takes Charge of Cadets

WEST POINT, Sept. 10.—Lieutenant Charles D. Daly, U. S. A., former Harvard and Army football star, who is to act as head coach of the Army football team again this year, has arrived here from his station on the Mexican border. Continued hot weather kept the gridiron men idle again yesterday, and it is unlikely that they will have any more work before Saturday.

Penn Is Lacking in Good Linesmen

PORT DEPOSIT, Md., Sept. 10.—Coach Buck Wharton of the Penn line seems to be up against the task of developing forwards from tackle to tackle from a bunch of men. Captain Harris, Fleming, Russell and Robinson are the only linemen with the squad at present.

In the practice Wray, last year's varsity halfback and freshman centre two seasons ago, was shifted into the line and will try to fill the centre position. Neil Mathews, another backfield man, went into the line at guard. Borie, Pepper and Witherow may report next week.

Barrows Is Shifted to Green Backfield

HANOVER, N. H., Sept. 10.—The Dartmouth football squad drilled only in the late afternoon. Coach Cavanaugh was able to get four teams running through signals, but nothing strenuous was tried.

Considerable attention is being paid to the punting of Gerrish, Thatcher and Cotton, who have improved much since last year. Cavanaugh shifted Barrows, last year's strong substitute line man, to the backfield. He weighs nearly 190 pounds.

S. S. S. Greatest Blood Remedy Gives Results When Others Fail

Nature's Remedy For Blood Troubles

The purifying and curative properties of Nature's great remedy have made "S. S. S. for the Blood" a household saying. Thousands today enjoying perfect health owe their recovery from blood or skin diseases to this universally used blood purifier. S. S. S. is made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, which possess cleansing and healing ingredients. You cannot be well when your blood is impure; you lack strength and energy natural with health; your complexion becomes pale and sallow; your vitality is weakened. When waste or refuse matter, which Nature intends shall be thrown off, is left in the system, it is absorbed into the blood and boils, pimples, rashes, blotches and other eruptions of the skin appear.

S. S. S. goes into the circulation and removes every particle of blood taint or poison of every character. All skin diseases and eruptions pass away, and the smooth, clear skin, glowing with health, shows that the body is being nourished by rich, pure blood. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, all are deep-seated blood disorders, and for their treatment nothing equals S. S. S. Get S. S. S. at any drug store. If yours is a peculiar case write S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

LEVINSKY SAYS HE WILL WIN ATLAS GO

"BATTLING" LEVINSKY, the greatest six-day fighter in captivity, expects to add another to his long list of victories when he clashes with "Sandy" Ferguson in a twelve-round skirmish at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The battling person declares he will dispose of Ferguson within the limit. If he makes good his boast he will be signed to exchange blows with Al Reich or Charley Weinert at the Triple-A organization. But if he is beaten Ferguson will be the one to get the future matches at the local club.

It is some time since Levinsky has performed in a Boston ring. He showed here last in the Fall of 1911. He was pitted against Leo Houck, who was then rated as one of the best of the middleweights.

Levinsky, who fought under the name of Barney Williams at that time, took the bout on short notice, but managed to give Houck a rugged bout, scoring a knockdown early in the tussle. Houck was naturally in better condition than his opponent and won the decision.

WILLIAMS, alias Levinsky, later took on weight and Danny Morgan sent him after the heavyweights. He also dubbed his protege "Battling" Levinsky, as he is a member of the Ghetto race. Levinsky experienced great success in fighting "White Hopes." He defeated many heavyweights who scaled around 225 pounds while he himself seldom entered the ring weighing more than 178 pounds. Levinsky's speed and boxing skill enabled him to easily outpoint the husky giants who opposed him.

DANNY MORGAN has always be- lieved in keeping his glove men busy. Consequently it was not an uncommon thing for Levinsky to take part in two or three contests a week. He evidently did the training stunts on Pullman cars or while chasing after a taxi cab. He is now headed this way intent upon adding Ferguson to his list of victims.

TED "KID" LEWIS will probably be engaged by Alex McLean to help prepare Gilbert Gallant for his twelve-round bout with Charley White at the Atlas A. A. September 21. Lewis met White in New York some six weeks ago and grabbed off the honors after two rounds of milling. He should be able to give Gallant many valuable tips on White's style of fighting. Mike Glover is already a member of Gallant's staff of trainers.

FRANKIE MACK, Beachmont's clever lightweight, is preparing for a hard ring campaign. He recently gave Walter Mohr a close battle at Fore River Bedford. He now says he would like to get a crack at Frankie Callahan or any other prominent lightweight.

Shrubb to Coach Again.

Alfred Shrubb, the English professional runner, has signed to coach the Harvard cross-country team. Shrubb will arrive in Cambridge about September 25 to take charge and expects to develop a winning team.

"THE RABBITS" COLUMN By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

BROOKLYN, Sept. 10.—I regret that I have been forced out of the Braves' lineup at this stage of the game with blood poisoning in my right foot. My physician informs me that I will have to take things easy for four or five days. In the meantime "Dick" Egan will cover my position. As he is a clever fielder and good batter, the team should keep up in the flag fight. But I must admit that I would like to be out playing with the boys every day. It is not very easy to remain idle just now with the season almost over and the Braves in an excellent position to smash their way into the lead.

GEORGE TYLER proved he is still there with bells on by holding Brooklyn down to one hit yesterday, and the scorers should have made it a no-hit game. It was a shame he was unable to be credited with a victory. Pfeffer, however, also hurled a swell game for the Dodgers and had Our Boys at his mercy most of the time.

* * *

WHEN the Braves were at home, I was not able to answer the many queries fired at me by the baseball "fans" of New England, as I was obliged to take part in morning practice each day, while there was a ball game in the afternoon. After the contest I would write my daily column of baseball news for the AMERICAN. I did not have time, however, to reply to some of the letters which I received. Conditions are different now that we are on the road. We do not have any morning practice, while we usually spend our evenings around our hotel. When the club started on its present road trip, I put a big bunch of letters which I have received from time to time into my valise, and I will answer them.

EDWARD J. SULLIVAN, who re- sides in Cambridge, writes me an interesting letter. He says:

"What is the matter with Davis? was he merely a 'flash-in-the-pan' that no-hit game he pitched last season? Did he establish a reputation he could not hold?

"What is the trouble with Paul Strand? You fellows needed pitchers up till recently, and even now could use an extra man. What is the matter with these boys this year? This is a question which many fans would like to have answered."

MR. SULLIVAN'S letter is very sincere and the kind which I like to receive. I will do my best to answer it. Davis has been bothered with a lame arm during the past few weeks, as it is in condition again. He pitched a few innings against Brooklyn at Braves Field last week and looked good to me. Stallings could start him in a game any time now. Davis, however, is still a little uncertain on account of the trouble he has had with his wing and the Boss does not wish to take any chances with him losing a game, especially as Rudolph, Ragan, Nehf, Hughes and Barnes are going at top speed just now and fighting for the chance to face the opposition.

Davis is a real pitcher and not a "flash-in-the-pan."

PAUL STRAND has been unfor- tunate this season. This twenty-year-old boy started off with a rush last Spring. He looked like a world beater. Shortly after the league season got under way Strand got a cold in his pitching arm. Rheumatism then set in. The result was that the Coast boy has been of little use to the Braves all season. Paul told me the other day that his arm is feeling right again and that he could finish a game right now if called upon to do so. I would not be the least bit surprised if Strand started a contest before long.

IF there are any other "fans" who wish me to discuss any particular baseball question, drop me a letter, care of the AMERICAN. It will be forwarded to me and I will send the answer back over the wire when I grind out my daily "dope."

* * *

WE have been criticised a great deal this year for "umpire baiting." I must admit that we have kept after the umpires quite a lot, but it has not been because we have had it in for the officials. We have the desire to win, and on some occasions have lost ourselves. Then, too, the umpires have been a little bit too strict on our bunch.

* * *

AN umpire's job is not an easy one in the National League just now. With the Phillies, Dodgers and Braves fighting for the lead, the arbitrators must be alert at all times. Every player on each of these three teams realizes that it means close to $3,000 to him if he is able to get into the world's series. Consequently we are liable to be a little more harsh on the umpire who renders a decision against us on a close play than we would be under ordinary circumstances.

* * *

I HAVE many friends among the umpires. They are all fine fellows off the ball field. It often hurts me when the "fans" get after them. They are trying to do their duty, but often get in wrong with the players and the crowd. The National League, of course, must stand back of its officials even when they make errors. Otherwise baseball would cease to be our national pastime.

Maranville Out of It; Spike Wound the Cause

"Rabbit" Maranville, the Braves' classy shortstop, is temporarily out of the game. A recent spike wound, which became infected, is to blame, and Manager Stallings fears that the "Rabbit" will not be able to get back into the fray before next Monday or Tuesday. Maranville was not on deck in yesterday's farewell frolic in Brooklyn.

"Dick" Egan will cavort at short while the "Rabbit" is laid up. "Pete" Compton's bad knee is also ailing him, and Moran kept Magee and Snodgrass company in the Braves' outer works yesterday.

CRACK GOLFERS IN WOODLAND TOURNEY

Three flights of sixteen golfers each started out this morning at Woodland in the first round of match play in the three-day Fall open amateur golf tourney. In the championship flight the lower half of the draw looks the more spicy, although the upper section shows possibilities of many close matches.

Jesse P. Guilford, Raymond Out- met, a brother of the ex-champion, who led the qualifiers yesterday; J. N. Manning, a former winner of the Woodland cup, and H. N. Raymond are all in the lower section, while G. H. Burke, the medalist at Commonwealth last Saturday; Parker Schofield of Albemarle, a semi-finalist in this year's State amateur championship; R. C. Lehane, the Commonwealth record-holder, and M. M. Purves, one of the low handicap players at Woodland, represent the apparent strength of the upper half.

The drawings for the first round and the order of play today follow:

H. T. Bond, Wollaston, vs. G. H. Pushee, Brae-Burn.
A. S. Thomas, Vesper, vs. P. Schofield, Albemarle.
H. Clarkson, invited, vs. B. M. Purves, Woodland.

ALL-STAR BIKE FIELD IN BIG BEACH RACE

Manager Butler of the Revere Cycle Track announced today that he had arranged an exceptionally fine list of amateur and professional events to go as preliminaries to the big sixty-two and a half-mile motor-paced race at the Beach Oval tomorrow night.

The paced race, which will bring together Victor Linart, the world's champion; George Wiley, Georges Seres, Clarence Carman and Tony Colombatto, promises to be one of the most exciting contests staged at Revere this season. It is really a re-race of the championship, as it takes in exactly the same field of riders that competed in the title event.

With nearly a week of rest, the starry lot of contestants should be in fine condition when the gun is fired for the start of the long grind tomorrow evening. Wiley, because of his victory in the big Labor Day race, has been made the favorite.

Although a championship field has been entered, the scale of prices will prevail.

35 Tigers Report for First Practice

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 10.—The sweltering weather could not dampen the enthusiasm of the candidates for the Tiger eleven and thirty-five reported for first practice. Head Coach Speed Rush was on hand. Pete Ballitet, '94; Phil Brashear, '06; Ham Andrews, '13, and Rip Shenk, '15, were the assistants who were present.

Of the men who reported to Captain Gilot there were six others who won their letter last year, Brown, Highley, Tibbott, McLean, Ames and Hogg. Kaufman, Halsey and Parsetti of last year's freshman team also were out. Of necessity the practice was light.

East vs. West on Courts.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The singles matches in the East vs. West tennis battling on the West Side courts start this afternoon. Frederick H. Alexander of New York will not be able to play with the Eastern team on account of a muscle strain received last week in his match with Maurice E. McLoughlin.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS BY RIGHT FIELD

LANNIN Day, which was to have been observed Saturday at Fenway Park, is off. The decision comes not through any lack of enthusiasm on the part of the "fans," but owing to the modesty of President Joseph J. Lannin of the Red Sox whom it was planned to honor. It was only finally learned by his wife that Mr. Lannin consented some time ago to have the day set apart, but now he has reconsidered. The "fans" had planned to make a big day of it and Mr. Lannin is deeply appreciative as he would have been had he felt he could consent to the celebration.

ONE series in the National League is now a closed book—that between the Braves and the Dodgers. The teams have met as often as decreed, with the Boston entry winning fourteen of the twenty-two scraps. The clashes between the Red Sox and the Athletics are over for the season today, with the verdict thus far standing sixteen to five for the Carrigans.

EVERYONE who reads baseball will be interested to see whom "Connie" Mack taps on the shoulder and duly appoints as a regular third baseman. It is doubtful if he makes the nomination this year, but probably in 1916 he will find somebody he thinks $25,000 worth of as part of a new $100,000 infield. Cochran reported to "Connie" at Fenway Park yesterday and was immediately placed on the hot corner.

THIS gave "Rube" Oldring a chance to patrol left field again, he having been thrashing owing to an injury to Wally Schang, the clever young backstop, whom the Tall Tactician shifted about.

MACK seems determined to look over all the third basemen in the country, besides a percentage of the pitchers. When some player gets the job regularly we shall be led to believe that "Connie" Mack regards him to be about the best ever.

COCHRAN was one of four youngsters who reported to Mack just before the third game of the series started. The Macks are in a hurry to get away from Boston, so today's pastiming will begin at 2:45.

BESIDES the two games at Pittsburgh today, the Braves are down for work September 15 and 16 that the schedule did not provide for. On the fifteenth they will work off a postponed game with the Cubs. The following day, when they are booked to play St. Louis, two games will be staged, one being a postponed affair.

SO it is the farm for Fred Clarke of the Pirates? The kind of farm, however, makes all the difference. The farm to which the hustling manager is bound when the curtain is rung down in October is a massive affair of his own in Kansas. Clarke is worth only about $250,000 besides having an optical invention that may bring in a mint of money.

"BUCK" HERZOG is another manager who is just about tired of baseball, or so he said last time he was here in Boston. Perhaps it was because it was a rainy day when he made the observation. He doesn't even intend to be tempted into a post-season barnstorming trip with a band of National League stars.

Barrett Restored to Cornell Eleven

ITHACA, Sept. 10.—Charles Barrett, captain of the Cornell football team and the mainspring of Cornell's offensive machine last Fall, will be able to play this Fall after all. All doubt as to Barrett was removed when the faculty petitions committee passed on his case and reached a favorable decision. When a formal request to restore the Cornell captain to good standing is filed it will be granted.

Barrett will head the Cornell squad when it takes the field for first practice Tuesday.

GIBBONS A 9-10 CHOICE OVER M'FARLAND

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Mike Gibbons and "Packey" McFarland, who are scheduled to do $12,500 worth of fighting in a ten-round bout at Brighton Beach tomorrow night, have ended their training.

As they took off their gloves for the last time until 10 o'clock tomorrow evening, each man declared himself to be in tip-top condition and ready for a hard battle.

Gibbons tips the beam at 147¾ pounds. "Packey" weighs an even 146. Both are drying out today and should have no trouble in settling down to 147 pounds, the stipulated weight.

Gibbons really found it easier to make the weight than his opponent. The St. Paul boy appears in grand shape, while McFarland still looks a little heavy. However, in his final workout "Packey" appeared every bit as fast as he did when he fought his greatest bouts in New York.

HOUSE MAY RUN $100,000.

The advance sale of tickets has reached about $12,000, according to the promoters. They figure now that the "house" will run over $70,000 and possibly may reach $100,000.

There are seats for over 12,000. The prices range from $1 to $5, and before night it is expected all the top-priced seats will have been sold.

Betting has been very light to date. A few wagers have been recorded on Broadway, with Gibbons a 10 to 9 favorite. McFarland's backers are asking for a better price, but right now it looks as though the boys will enter the ring at evens.

Both men issued statements today. "Packey" said:

"I don't expect to stop Gibbons, but I am sure I will outpoint him. I really taught Mike the rudiments of the game and know his style from top to nuts. I expect to 'make' the fight; that is, do the leading. If I can keep Gibbons on his heels he won't have a chance to hit me. And I have yet to find the man that I could not make back up. It should be a great scrap with yours truly the winner."

Mike told the scribblers the following: "I never was in better condition. You fellows that saw me work at week know that. I understand that McFarland thinks he can outbox me. Well, I know that he can't. I hit straighter and faster than 'Packey.' If he comes tearing in at me I will jump to a clinch and I am sure of winning with chances about even that I drop McFarland."

Gotham Boxing

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The weight question, which threatened to knock the Ted Lewis-Jack Britton return match at Boston into a cocked hat, has been straightened. Manager Jimmy Johnston agreeing to allow Britton to come in at catch-weights.

"BATTLING" LEVINSKY is getting himself in first-class shape for his bout with "Sandy" Ferguson next Tuesday night at the Atlas A. A. in Boston. According to Danny Morgan, "Sandy" will see more boxing gloves on that occasion than he ever saw in the ring before.

TWO nights later the Battler will be seen in action with Jack (Porky) Flynn of Boston in one of the two heavyweight bouts to be staged at the Clermont Avenue Rink here.

SOMEONE in this burg has evident- ly been working evenings, for several counterfeit tickets to the McFarland-Gibbons fight have come to the attention of the promoters. Detectives were at once ordered to apprehend the criminals.

TOMMY LOWE will stage heavy- weights at his Washington club the latter part of the month. "Battling" Levinsky and Jack Reid, the Toledo boxer, will be the principals in the star bout which will be for fifteen rounds.

BOB DAILEY, who is handling the pugilistic interests of Johnny Marto, has planned a busy Fall campaign for his charge. Marto is scheduled to box Joe Azevedo, Matt Wells, Al Foxgard and Freddie Welsh in quick order.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in the last hour and markets dull. Although the unfilled tonnage of U. S. Steel had decreased at the end of August, it said the corporation's earnings for that month would be the largest on record. The indicated gain in exas by New York banks for the week is $23,284,000. Net losses for the day's declines included American Can 1, Best Sugar 1⅜, U. S. Steel 1, American Locomotive 3⅛, Baldwin 3, Colorado Fuel 2, Crucible 2⅜, N. Y. Air Brake 2, Republic Iron & Steel 1, Tennessee Copper 1, Inspiration 1⅜, Anaconda ⅝, Utah ¼, Atchison ⅝, Canadian Pacific 1, Chesapeake & Ohio 1⅛, Lehigh Valley 2, New Haven 1⅜, Reading 1, St. Paul ⅝ and Union Pacific ⅝. Bethlehem Steel, which had advanced 10 to 135, was unchanged.

Among gains were American Woolen common 2¼, General Motors 1, Studebaker 1⅜ and Pressed Steel Car ⅝.

Boston losses included Elevated 1, Boston & Maine 1, Chesapeake & Ohio 1, United Fruit ½, Pond Creek ⅜, Butte & Superior 2¼, American Zinc ⅛, Copper Range ⅛, Greene-Cananea ⅛ and North Butte ¼. Among gains were Allouez 1¼, Woolen preferred ¼, Calumet & Arizona ½, Massachusetts Electric ¼ and Alaska Gold ⅛.

The recessional movement in the afternoon was attributed to what Washington thinks of the outlook of the Teutonic allies.

At the opening in New York bears applied pressure on the presumption that the recall of the Austrian ambassador should cause a bear action. Prices declined under free selling, but most of the recessions were small fractions, although a few minutes buying orders from the outside steadied the market and it is reported there was a demand for some standard issues by important Wall Street men. The supply of stocks appeared to be scanty. The market became irregular and remained so until afternoon. But a number of issues soon recovered losses and made gains. Steel yielded a little, its report as to unfilled orders at the end of August showing a decrease of 20,585 tons for that month. This was disappointing to many. Bethlehem Steel and General Motors sold at highest record prices during the forenoon and American Woolen at the highest since 1906. Mexican Petroleum's rise is attributed to pool operations. Room traders looked foolish, but it is reported that the public is still in an optimistic mood. The arrival of the British and French loan commissioners was reflected favorably in foreign exchange quotations, little business was done in that market, however. At the opening demand sterling was quoted at $4.69@4.70, cables at $4.69@70. There were few requirements to fill. Wall Street believes the foreign loan will be placed without difficulty and that exchange will soon adjust itself. Most of the business was in war order stocks. As a class they were the strongest.

The Boston market opened quiet and irregular and the subsequent trend was downward. Most fluctuations were fractional and of no significance. The metal market did not improve. It is reported some electrolytic copper sold today at 18 cents a pound. The supply of speltier is said to be limited, but consumers are in no hurry to buy at present prices. That is true also of users of lead. The nearby copper and futures advanced 10s, but electrolytic and speltier were unchanged. Lead was 3s 6d.

Henry Ford's New Machine for the Farmer

It Is Another Tribute to Ford's Genius. May It Fulfill Every Hope

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

HENRY FORD has been working for some years and is still working on a "farm tractor."

He has given to the citizens a marvellously efficient machine to take them over the roads.

Now he proposes to give the farmers something that will take the place of the horse in farm work, as his car already takes the place of the horse in road work.

His machine will sell at a low price—about three hundred dollars—we are glad to give our readers some idea of Ford's plans for a new public service.

The machine has been kept secret, experiments being made privately, with the taking of moving pictures for Mr. Ford's exclusive use that he might see for himself just how the machine works and its defects, if any.

At the suggestion of Thomas A. Edison, Mr. Ford sent by a special messenger from Detroit that wondertully interesting moving picture, to be seen only by the editor of this newspaper and by Courtland Smith, president of the American Press Association.

The exhibition lasted a long time, for the film displayed every possible kind of farm work.

If moving picture geniuses could get Henry Ford to let them have the picture to be shown in agricultural regions they would pack with farmers every theatre where the film might be shown.

The machine is small, extremely powerful.

First you see it pulling a double disc harrow cutting up the rough earth left by the plow.

An old man with a white beard is driving the wonderful little machine rapidly pulling the harrow.

Then you see the same machine and the same old man driving it. Behind the machine there is a gang-plow, and Henry Ford himself, standing up straight on the platform of the gang-plow, is working the plow-shares, attending to the shifting around corners and other management.

After the exhibition of the harrow and the plow comes cultivating the corn. You see the machine with a cultivator behind it, and only one man operating machine and cultivator, going through the cornfield.

Then later you see the same machine with the wheels changed to high wheels, going through the corn when it is knee-high. This change of wheels makes it possible to cultivate corn so high that a team could not safely go through it.

You see this same wonderful little engine pulling a gigantic load such as would take at least three teams of horses to pull. The load is so heavy that while the moving picture is working one of the great wheels of the truck breaks and drops the load. The little machine has been pulling a load so heavy that a huge wheel and iron axle go down under it.

Mr. Ford plans to arrange his machine so that it can be used to do stationary farm work as well as hauling machinery. It will saw wood, thresh grain, shred corn-stalks and blow the shreds into the top of the silo, and do any other stationary engine work.

Providence works mysteriously, and Henry Ford is certainly part of the "works." We are told that in wartime, when so many men are killed, a great many BOY babies are born.

Now in this wartime, when hundreds of thousands of horses are killed, Henry Ford presents to the world a machine that will make the horse almost as extinct as the dodo.

The new farm worker will cost no more than a perfectly good, sound horse—and do the work of ten horses.

It does not eat when it isn't working. It doesn't get spavins, ring-worm, heaves and doesn't founder.

It doesn't mind mosquitoes, and cannot be abused with a club by a brutal driver. You can use oil, gasoline or any kind of explosive fuel with it. We have had the pleasure of seeing various types, with queer little oil tanks in the air above the hood of the tractor, and others looking more like the Ford machine of today.

The task which Mr. Ford has in hand is of such tremendous importance to the world that everybody must be interested in it. Bear in mind that a machine of this kind, REALLY cheap, really powerful and enduring, will take millions of people from the cities to the farms, multiply vastly the food production, increase by incalculable millions every year the wealth of the world.

No imagination can exaggerate what this machine will mean if Henry Ford can actually succeed in doing on the farm, in the fields, on plowed land, the work that he has done on the road.

He will welcome suggestions from everybody, and we offer him diffidently this one.

Experiment with what is known as the "caterpillar" type.

With two movable front wheels, farmers will find steering difficult in soft, plowed land. Cultivating will be troublesome between rows of corn and potatoes because of the danger of the shifting wheels injuring the crop.

Investigation of the "caterpillar" type, which is not patented and is open to anybody's use, will show you that it gives the maximum drawing power because it gives the maximum HOLD UPON THE GROUND.

Consult with Holt of California, who has done admirable work with huge farm machines, get the value of his experience with the "caterpillar." And—one more suggestion, Mr. Ford—

Let the editors of the small country papers be YOUR SALESMEN.

Give to the country editors the chance to make for themselves the enormous profit that will come to those that sell your tractors to the farmers.

Country editors are the men who know the farmers and who will TELL THEM ABOUT YOUR MACHINE.

Woods Hutchinson Pleads for the Baby's Comfort

Clean Food, Good Air and Precaution Against Insects of Prime Importance to Infants' Welfare

By Woods Hutchinson, A. M., M. D.

EVEN the Good Old Summer Time has its drawbacks for the little ones. While it gives them grass to roll on and green, shady trees to play under, its fostering and fertilizing heat also promotes the growth of other and tinier "vegetables," the bacteria and bacilli, which raise strange and distressing disturbances in their little interiors.

Good corn weather is unfortunately good germ weather also, to say nothing of the finest kind of fly-breeding and mosquito-swarming days and nights.

On the whole, however, Summer heat, above the sub-tropics, does us far more good than harm, over and above its priceless food-giving services through its effect upon our crops. Much of the anxious dread often felt by mothers and nurses of the "deadly second Summer" in child life is really unfounded, especially if we use our intelligence and the resources of science.

While the warm weather places new lions in the path that childhood's feet must tread, in the shape of soured milk and spoiled foods and restless nights and prickly heat and flies and gnats and chiggers, on the other hand, the abundant supply of fresh air which it furnishes day and night, so comfortably warmed that even the fussiest and most flannel-loving draft-hater loses his dread of open windows and doors, the open-air life to which it invites by a hundred lures all day long and half the night and its rich and varied supply of delicious fruits and cooling vegetables and cheap milk and eggs more than counterbalance its dangers.

In the days when we had little ice and no cold storage or refrigerator cars, or swift transportation, and no bathrooms or running water in the house, but drank diluted sewage, which we called well water, out of a bucket, and ate with one hand and fought flies with the other at meal times, July and August were times of terror for those who had young children. But today, with these modern improvements which we so often hear denounced as in some mysterious way undermining our health and our stamina, the Summer, yes, even the dog days, is one of the healthiest seasons of the whole year for the entire community, and even the rise in the death rate, which occasionally comes among young children, does not equal that from the foul air diseases of Winter in February and March.

Against Summer diseases in children three main gates need to be guarded: First and most vital, the effect of the heat upon their food and drink; second, its effect upon themselves; third, its hatching effects upon swarms of insects which carry disease, or murder sleep, or destroy comfort.

It may, perhaps, be a surprise to some to find that the most serious menace of Summer heat to children is through its effect upon their food. But we are coming more and more strongly to that opinion every year. While prolonged and particularly sultry heat alone produces injurious and depressing effects upon children, especially in cities where play space is limited and crowded and houses and bedrooms stuffy and airless, yet this is scarcely a third as dangerous as spoiled and infected and putrid foods. Indeed, it is most to be dreaded as an accessory and additional straw to food diseases, and children who are thoroughly well-fed and "watered," both inside and out, will stand even prolonged heat surprisingly well, especially if it can be prevented from robbing them of their sleep.

The first step to be taken when the dread of Summer sickness is abroad in the land is to watch your milk and your milkman; the second is to watch your grocer and your supply of fruit and vegetables; third, watch your own icebox or refrigerator and your cook, if you have one, and yourself if you haven't. Solomon was a child specialist before his time when he said: "Man, born of woman, is few of years and full of bowel troubles."

Milk comes first upon the list of "suspects," partly because it is one of the chief foods of young children and partly because it is by far the most easily spoiled. Which last simply means that it is one of the best Summer foods going and the pesky Summer germs know it and pile into it and multiply to beat the band every chance they get. Keep clearly in mind that spoiling of milk or any other food always means germ contamination, infection, in fact. The germs of putrefaction have "beaten you to it" and are eating it first. The danger of spoiled food lies in the fact that you are eating, not food, but a sponge filled with millions of bugs and the colics and diarrhoeas which follow are due to what the germs do to your stomach and intestines. Spoiled food is merely a carrier, a capsule to smuggle poisonous germs into your system.

Keep your food just as spotlessly and specklessly clean as you possibly can, from garden or barn to table, but if a few spoiling disease germs should get on it in spite of you, keep it cool with either cold air, cold water or ice, fifty-five degrees or below, and that will prevent these germs from developing or make their growth so slow that the stomach will easily be able to deal with them and digest them alive. Only huge doses, hundreds of thousands or millions of germs can get by a healthy stomach.

Canton High School Pupils Pay Fare Twice Each Way

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—The following is a matter that is causing a great deal of discussion and comment in our town, and we think that possibly you might care to write it up:

Apropos of the recent petitions of the various street railways to the Public Service Commission for authority to increase fares, it is to be noted that under the schedule of rates and zones as established on the line of the Blue Hills Street Railway in Canton pupils attending the local high school are obliged to pay four "half fares," or ten cents a day, in order to get back and forth to high school.

How many sons and daughters of the ordinary wage earner will be able to avail themselves of our boasted "free" high school institution when the transportation to and from the same for two children in one family is one dollar a week?

Will be glad to give you any information you might desire on the subject.

Yours truly,

M. E. McMORROW.

Life Just a Jest if It Were the Only Life

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

THERE are songs enough for the hero
Who dwells on the heights of fame
I sing for the disappointed,
For those who missed their aim.

I sing with a tearful cadence
For one who stands in the dark
And knows that his last, best arrow
Has bounded back from the mark.

I sing for the breathless runner,
The eager, anxious soul,
Who falls with his strength exhausted,
Almost in sight of the goal.

For the hearts that break in silence,
With a sorrow all unknown,
For those who need companions,
Yet walk their ways alone.

There are songs enough for the lovers,
Who share love's tender pain;
I sing for the one whose passion
Is given all in vain.

For those whose spirit comrades
Have missed them on the way,
I sing, with a heart o'erflowing,
This minor strain today.

And I know the solar system
Must somewhere keep in space
A prize for that spent runner,
Who barely lost the race.

For the plan would be imperfect,
Unless it held some sphere
That paid for the toil and talent
And love that are wasted here.

AT its very best and brightest this life would be a cruel jest were it the only life we had to live. But it is only one of many lives; it is neither beginning nor end; it is only one stair in an ascending spiral.

Victor Hugo said of life:

"I feel in myself the future life. I am like a forest once cut down; the new shoots are stronger and livelier than ever. I am rising, I know, toward the sky. The sunshine is on my head. The earth gives me its generous sap, but heaven lights me with the reflection of unknown worlds.

"You say the soul is nothing but the resultant of the bodily powers. Why, then, is my soul more luminous when my bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head, but eternal Spring is in my heart. I breathe at this hour the fragrance of the lilacs, the violets and the roses as at twenty years. The nearer I approach the end the plainer I hear around me the immortal symphonies of the worlds which invite me. It is marvellous, yet simple. It is a fairy tale, and it is history.

Death Means a Larger Territory and More Opportunities

The Rev. Arthur Chambers, M. A., associate of Kings College, London, has something interesting to say of life immortal. He says:

"What does spiritual light disclose? A glorious world of intelligence, life and progress, over whose portals gleams the hope inspiring word, 'Excelsior;' a world of magnificent possibilities for every human creature; a world in which all that is dear and noble in our dear departed ones will surely be expanded and matured, and where all that is evil and imperfect will be eliminated and improved. He who lives and learns and grows in knowledge will one day hear his Father say, 'I must put you in a higher school to complete your education.'"

That is all the meaning of death. It is a larger territory and increased opportunities. In our Father's house are many mansions, and in no one of these mansions do we remain forever. We pass from room to room, from school to school, from life to life.

We are on the eve of a great spiritual awakening for the whole world. It is well for each one of us to be receptive to the wonderful influx of spiritual knowledge and power which is surely about to pour itself from unseen space into the minds of those who have made themselves clean vessels for its reception.

"Cleanse Your Desires, Cleanse Your Acts and Win Peace"

Cleanse your desires, cleanse your actions, and unto you shall be given knowledge, power, peace and usefulness.

Here is a little mantram for your daily use taken from the Self-Culture Journal:

"Would you be at peace? Speak peace to the world.

"Would you be healed? Speak health to the world.

"Would you be loved? Speak love to the world.

"For all the world is so closely akin that no one individual may realize his desire except all the world share it with him.

"And every Good Word you send into the world is a silent, mighty power, working for Peace, Health, Love, Joy, Success to all the World—including yourself."

They reach every farmer in the United States and can tell him your story over and over again. They are your natural salesmen.

The editor who supplies news and views to the farmer, who represents him and defends him, is entitled to his part of the nation's prosperity.

Mr. Ford can recognize this admirably by notifying the country newspaper editors that they can have the opportunity to secure, without favor to any, but a free field to all, the selling agency for the new Ford tractor.

We suggest to country editors that they write to Henry Ford, Detroit, Mich., what they think about this suggestion and their idea as to the number of such machines that they could sell in their neighborhood. The dealer in the Ford road car makes fifteen per cent. on four hundred and forty dollars, and all he has to do is to push the car off the freight train.

That is more than sixty dollars profit on each car.

If the country editor could make fifty or even twenty-five dollars profit on each Ford tractor sold to his farmer-readers it would mean several hundred times twenty-five dollars, and that would be worth making.
